Outlook Good For Cabinet Job Addition

Sponsors Hopeful House, Senate Will Settle Differences

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sponsors of the bill creating a Cabinet Department of Housing and Urban Development predicted today the differences between the House and Senate versions will be settled quickly.

The Senate passed the high-priority administration measure Wednesday 57 to 33 and sent it back to the House which had cleared it 217 to 184 June 16.

Voting for it were 47 Democrats and 10 Republican senators. Opposed were 14 Democrats, including 12 Southerners, and 19 Republicans.

Hailing the Senate action, President Johnson said in a statement, "We will make sure that every family in America has access to a home of dignity and a neighborhood of pride." He said he was delighted with what he called the strong bipartisan support in the Senate for the new department.

Low-Key Debate

Two days of low-key Senate debate on the bill came as an anticlimax after 10 years of congressional dispute over establishing a Cabinet department to deal with problems of cities.

Federal Water Crisis Experts Begin Activity

Laying Out Plan For Systematic Solution of Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal water crisis team heads into the drought-stricken Northeast today to begin laying out a systematic program for solving an acute water shortage.

Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall and Lt. Gen. W. F. Cassidy, chief of the Army Engineers, head the team which has meetings scheduled at Philadelphia (1:30 p.m. EDT) and Camden, N.J., (4 p.m.) today and at Newark, N.J., (9 a.m.) and New York City (2 p.m.) Friday.

Follow-up teams of about a half dozen men each will be set up in each city to continue working with state and local officials on drought problems.

This was the machinery ordered Wednesday by President Johnson during a White House conference of governors, mayors, members of Congress and other officials from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware called to discuss the four years of drought.

"Time for Action" "This is a time for action — federal, state and local, public and private," Johnson said.

He announced measures to mobilize federal aid for longer range projects including a $4-million water resources planning survey for the entire Northeast from Maine to Virginia and speedups in reservoir projects in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Johnson also signed a bill authorizing a $185-million speedup in the program to convert salt and brackish water to fresh water.

Udall and Cassidy met for more than an hour following the White House meeting with dozens of state and local officials from the drought area to set up the machinery for implementing the President's plan.

Challenge of New Voting Law Filed

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — An attack on the constitutionality of the new federal voting rights law has been filed in federal court and the state's attorney general hints there may be a second test suit.

Gov. John J. McKeithen says he thinks the suit challenging the law — designed primarily to open registration rolls in the Deep South to Negroes — has a good chance.

But McKeithen said Chief Justice Earl Warren has "obviously passed on its constitutionality."

Orleans Parish voter registrar A. P. Gallinhouse filed the test suit in U.S. District Court here Wednesday. He asked for an immediate injunction halting enforcement of the law, which President Johnson signed last Friday.

Warns Asian Communists

SINGAPORE (AP) — Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew made a peace overture to Indonesia today but at the same time warned Asian Communists not to make trouble for his newly independent nation.

Lee said he was willing to meet Indonesian President Sukarno as soon as Indonesia recognizes Singapore as an independent state.

Sukarno has been waging a guerrilla and sabotage campaign against the Federation of Malaysia from which Singapore separated Monday.

Lee said he considered it highly significant that the Indonesian government omitted any mention of Singapore from a statement this week that its time warned Asian Communists not to make trouble for his newly independent nation.

"I noticed Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio said 'crush Malaysia' — not Singapore," Lee told a news conference. "I do not believe the omission was accidental. I think Singapore and Indonesia should be able to live together."

"I will meet President Sukarno anywhere," Lee said. "I will go to the ends of the earth to bring peace to Southeast Asia. But if we are to trade and be friendly with Indonesia, President Sukarno must first recognize that I have a voice of my own."

In his warning to the Communists, he said: "I am giving them fair warning. Don't try anything here. If the Communists resort to inciting riots and bloodshed here, they must be prepared for the consequences."

Lee said it was "absolutely necessary" that the Communists not be given a chance to take over the 214-square mile island state.

Lee hinted he believed a new government will soon gain control of the island.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — said about 10 officers and many Negroes were injured by flying stones, bottles and bricks battered squads of helmeted policemen as they charged into 1,500 rioters, mostly teen-agers, in a Negro suburb Wednesday night and today.

More than 100 officers were dispatched to the scene, a community named Watts. Deputy Police Chief Roger E. Murdock standers had been attacked, auto windows smashed, and some stores looted.

Guerrillas In Kashmir Vex India

50 Clashes in Six Days Blamed on Pakistani Infiltration

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India was plagued today by guerrilla fighting in the Himalayan state of Kashmir and civil disturbances in the eastern and southern parts of the vast sub-continent.

Raiders the government claims infiltrated from Pakistan have ignited hit-and-run warfare in disputed Kashmir. About 50 clashes have been reported in the past six days.

On the eastern side of the map, battalions of troops were flown into Bihar State with orders to shoot on sight at rampaging mobs that have been attacking train stations, post offices and communication lines for three days.

Grain Shops Looted Mobs in Bihar and neighboring West Bengal State looted state-controlled grain shops.

In the southern state of Andhra Pradesh, more than 1,000 students attacked officials' homes at Osmania University in Hyderabad. Police beat them off with clubs.

Reports reaching New Delhi today gave these details: The Kashmir fighting was scattered all along and far behind the cease-fire line established after the Indian-Pakistani war over the state in 1948.

India claimed 1,000 to 1,500 infiltrators had been sent across from the Pakistani sector of Kashmir. The government said 84 Pakistanis and 29 Indians had been killed since Aug. 5.

Phil LaFollette Seriously Ill in Madison Hospital

MADISON (AP) — Former Gov. Phillip F. LaFollette has been seriously ill in a Madison hospital since Aug. 3, it was disclosed Wednesday night.

The nature of the illness of the former three-term chief executive has not been disclosed, but his law partner, Gordon Sinykin, said LaFollette was taken to Madison General Hospital after complaining of severe pains in his chest and side.

LaFollette is the uncle of Atty. Gen. Bronson LaFollette. His father was Sen. Robert M. (Fighting Bob) LaFollette Sr., and his brother, the late Robert M. LaFollette Jr., also served in the Senate.

Running on the Republican ticket, LaFollette was swept into the office of governor in 1930 by a huge majority after defeating Gov. Walter J. Kohler in the primary election.

70-Day-Old Viet Cong Attack Ended

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. and Vietnamese troops lifted the 70-day-old siege of Duc Co today.

Powerful units launched operations to wipe Viet Cong from the jungles flanking 40 miles of highway on which that special forces camp is near the Cambodian frontier.

In the air war, a U.S. Navy A4 Skyhawk was reported shot down by a surface to air missile about 50 miles south-southwest of Hanoi.

A military spokesman said the downed craft was one in a formation of four of the single seat lightweight jet bombers. The pilot was presumed killed.

From Mobile Unit

The spokesman said the area was outside the range of known anti-aircraft missile sites in North Viet Nam. He would not elaborate, but it was believed this indicated the missile was fired from a mobile unit.

U.S. troops of the 173rd Airborne Brigade and the 2nd Brigade of the 1st Infantry Division backed up government battalions of a relief column that reached Duc Co Wednesday night.

The Americans had flown Tuesday and Wednesday to Pleiku, 2nd Corps area headquarters.

Exile Jailed Alone for His Protection

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A Cuban exile charged with piracy of the coastal freighter Seven Seas and the murder of five fellow seamen has been placed in a cell alone "for his own protection."

At no time will Roberto Ramirez, 35, be allowed to mingle with other prisoners, said Sgt. Harold Adams of the county jail, "because of the circumstances of the case."

Ramirez, a muscular, dark-skinned Cuban national, was taken to the 8x10, windowless cell Wednesday night after the federal government decided it had jurisdiction over the slayings aboard the Seven Seas.

A U.S. commissioner signed the warrant and a hearing was set for today.

Argument Over Castro

The violence aboard the Seven Seas started, Ramirez reportedly told federal authorities, when the captain and the crew threatened to report him for favoring Cuban dictator Fidel Castro.

The captain was shot to death on the bridge and thrown overboard. Three crewmen were shot in their sleep, and a fourth was killed and thrown into the Atlantic Ocean off the Florida Keys.

The only crewman to survive was Burgess Elwin, 17, who was covered in a chainlocker after he saw one shooting. He was rescued when the Coast Guard spotted the freighter drifting up the Gulf Stream Sunday afternoon.

A sixth crewman, the cook, apparently drowned when he jumped overboard to escape Ramirez.

Widow, Sons at Ceremony for Deceased Hero

'Yet, You're Still Before My Eyes'

NEW YORK (AP) — Before he died in Viet Nam Capt. Christopher J. O'Sullivan wrote his two sons that "though we are thousands of miles apart, yet you are still before my eyes."

To his wife, Eleanor, he wrote: "I promised you that I would be overly cautious now that I am rotating so soon. I cannot keep that promise this time. By the time you receive this letter it will be over one way or the other."

In memory of a father and husband who gave his life to save a friend two sons saluted and a widow clasped her hand to her heart Wednesday.

They were guests at a parade and ceremony on Governor's Island attended by the captain's parents, Francis Cardinal Spellman and Mrs. Stephen E. Smith, sister of the late President John F. Kennedy.

High Decoration Mrs. O'Sullivan accepted this nation's second highest military decoration, the Distinguished Service Cross, for her husband, Michael, 4 and Stephen, 3, were at her side.

Capt. O'Sullivan's home was in Astoria, Queens.

Capt. O'Sullivan was killed in an ambush in Viet Nam May 30 as he led a party of Rangers in an attempt to rescue Lt. Donald Robinson of Tacoma, Wash. Seventy-five Vietnamese Rangers also died the first place.

A hero dead in battle — yet to some it inspired derision. Mrs. O'Sullivan gained national attention last month because of venomous telephone calls.

Stan Musial Claims U. S. Youth Healthier

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Stan Musial, leader of the President's physical fitness program, says the march of American youth toward softness has been reversed.

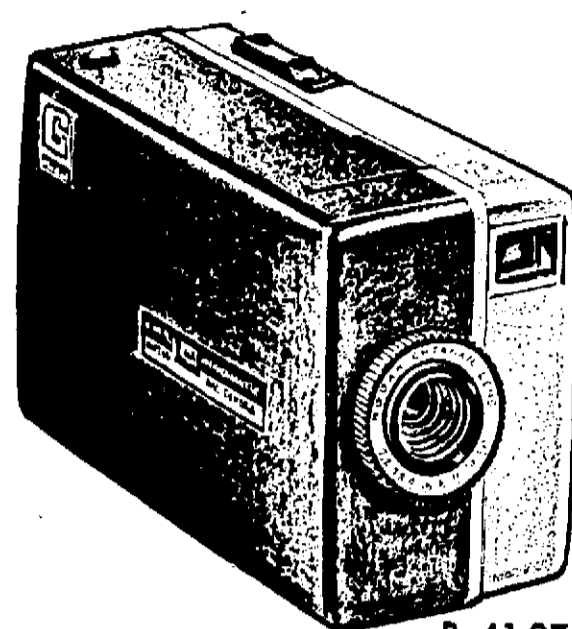

"There's no question about it," said the former St. Louis Cardinal baseball star. "We've won an important victory with the physical fitness program."

Musial's remark came after release of a Pentagon report Wednesday which said that American boys are as healthy — or healthier — than those of 20 years ago.

Chief Executive 'Under the Gun'

Need for 4-Year Term for Governor Stressed by State Justice Fairchild

The need of a four-year term for Wisconsin's governorship to eliminate the necessity of placing the state's chief executive "under the gun for re-election every other year," was stressed by state Supreme Court Justice Thomas E. Fairchild in a talk to the Appleton Kiwanis Club Wednesday.

Wisconsin, which is in the minority of states having two-year terms for governors, places "re-election never farther away than next year. He is always campaigning," Justice Fairchild said.

Justice Fairchild, who was elected to the state's highest court in 1956, is chairman of the Governor's Commission of Constitutional Revision, a citizen's group which studies and makes recommendations to the State Legislature on constitutional changes which it feels are needed.

Revision Needed

There are several areas, Justice Fairchild's commission feels, that are especially needy of revision, in addition to the governor's tenure. Several recommendations have been made to the legislature.

In high priority on the commission's list of "necessaries" is the drive to have the governor and lieutenant-governor run on the same ticket, as

$2 Million Bond Issue In Kaukauna

Money Needed for School, Municipal Construction, Repair

KAUKAUNA — The Council Finance committee Tuesday voted to recommend the adoption of a resolution to float a $2,000,000 bond issue, to be used for school and municipal work.

Purchase of property, construction and equipping of a junior high-elementary school, and providing sewer, water and roadway to the school is expected to cost $1,500,000. The remaining $500,000 will be used to provide secondary treatment at the sewage disposal plant through improvement, expansion and renovation of the facilities required by state order.

Bids on the proposed bond issue will be opened at 2 p.m. Sept. 21, according to the committee proposal, and a 20-year retirement plan was adopted with interest to be paid semi-annually. The 20-year retirement plan was worked out in cooperation with the city auditor.

The plan calls for payment of $40,000 on the principal from 1966 through 1970, $50,000 through 1973, $70,000 in 1974-75, $80,000 through 1977, $90,000 through 1980, $215,000 in 1981 through 1984 and final payment of $220,000 in 1985.

The individual counsel ruling was handed down today by acting Winnebago County Court, Branch 3, Judge Herbert J. Mueller. The couple had previously been ruled indigent.

Further proceedings in the matter were adjourned until 10 a.m. Monday. Miracle is confined in the county jail in lieu of $1,000 bond, while Mrs. Miracle is free on her own recognizance in order to care for two children.

Each of the Miracles is charged with nine counts of issuing worthless checks in July. Miracle's checks totaled $185. Mrs. Miracle's, $136.77.

Kaukauna Finds First Case of Elm Disease

KAUKAUNA — The first normal wood whiteness, both known case of Dutch Elm disease in the history of the city, was found recently in a tree on private property on the south side of the community, according to Victor Luedtke, park superintendent.

The tree was cut down immediately and burned to prevent spread of the disease. The park superintendent said more could be done to prevent the spread of the disease, most important being the removal of all dead elm branches or wood, and burning of the wood immediately.

Indication of trouble is the sudden yellowing of an unbroken elm tree limb on a tree which otherwise appears healthy, Luedtke said. Cutting off such a limb might reveal a brown ring, inside the bark layer and are costly measures considering the large number of elms in the community.

The special meeting had been scheduled this week so there would be time to include the question with a referendum Sept. 14 on making four of the city's top jobs appointive.

However, weighing again the relative values of lakes Winnebago and Michigan, the council voted, 14-6, with Thompson's proposal.

Action Expected on Two Four-Year UW Branches

Governor to Appoint Committee To Select Locations for Schools

MADISON — State officials will move quickly under the Legislature's recent authorization to plan two new four-year branches of the University of Wisconsin in northeastern Wisconsin and in the Racine-Kenosha area.

Gov. Warren P. Knowles says he intends to name the members of the site selection committee simultaneously with nomination of the members of the reorganized Coordinating Committee for Higher Education, probably during the next 10 days.

He expects the statutory site selection authorities to proceed immediately with their work in sifting alternate locations. This will conform with the spirit of the legislative act contemplating the provision of additional high-level education opportunities for rapidly rising enrollment.

Meanwhile, the first suggestions about academic and other programs at the new schools, when they are established, will be received here by the University of Wisconsin regents at their meeting Aug. 20.

New School Planning Under the act, the planning of the new schools has been given subject to the approval of the reconstituted coordinating committee.

L. H. Adolfson, chancellor of the University branches, probably will present the preliminary report of the University administrations thinking about branch university programs. A faculty committee already has considered the matter in anticipation of Gov. Knowles' approval of the bill authorizing $400,000 for the preliminary planning work for the two branch institutions.

The regents at their meeting next week will probably nominate their representative on the site selection board. The law provides for one University representative and one representing the building commission, both of whom would require the appointment of the governor, and the state architect chief planner, ex-officio, on the site selection group.

Current enrollment applications for the eight existing UW receiving five first place trophies, according to a report was named chairman of the 1966 Badger Boys State committee, Leon Toonen was named Monday night meeting.

The village post received the membership chairman for the civic achievement Pendell trophy to drive to open Aug. 28 and 29, the most coveted award, and Ray Winus was named for the 12th straight year, the chairman of the hospital bed Cooper trophy for boy's work program.

The post has purchased several hospital beds which are made available to village residents or post members and their families without charge. Persons needing a bed may contact Winus, Edward Bank-post over 400 membership.

Little Chute also received first honorable mention in competition for the McCoy Americanism trophy, first honorable mention for the diversified sports Spaulding trophy and second honorable mention in the post service James F. Burns trophy competition.

Plans were made to honor Harold Van Dyke at a dinner prior to the September meeting for his work in making possible the winning of many of the trophies. Van Dyke has been post historian for 15 years and played an important role in the winning of the Pendell trophy over the 12-year span. Les Winus was named dinner chairman.

A committee was appointed to study the possibility of selling a portion of Legion-owned property to the village to enable the community to construct an addition to the village garage. The garage abuts Legion property. Committee members are Jack Metz, Carl Hammen, Martin Jansen, James Peeters and Les Winus.

1965 Grand Chute Assessed Value Up Over $2.3 Million

Increase to Provide $75,000 in Revenue Without Tax Rate Hike

Real and personal property assessment in the Town of Grand Chute has increased by more than $2.3 million dollars over last year, according to John Stevens, town assessor.

The new figure is $19,482,838, compared with $17,114,018 last year.

It will provide about $75,000 in additional tax revenue for the town without raising the tax rate. Last year's tax rate was $33.50 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

Included in the increase of total property are real estate, $16,572,245, up from $14,744,245, and personal property, $2,909,993, up from $2,369,773.

Real estate improvements provided the biggest boost for the new total, with $12,565,500 being assessed this year, compared with $11,108,100 last year. Land value was assessed at $4,007,345, compared to last year's $3,636,145.

Education Payments The added money received from taxes will help pay for the higher payments to the City of Appleton for education. A total of $17,000 will be necessary this year, compared to about $5,000 last year, Stevens said.

The increase results from the state's having allowed Appleton to attach Grand Chute to the city for vocational school purposes, whereas previously it had only been for high school purposes. Because of the attachment, however, Appleton has about $40 million more in equalized valuation on which to borrow for school construction.

Real estate assessments in Grand Chute, with the increase over last year given in parentheses, are:

Residential—land, $1,472,810 ($44,800); improvements, $7,489,600 ($574,900); total, $8,962,410 ($629,700). Mercantile—land, $619,550 ($133,200); improvements, $2,239,150 ($300,450); total, $2,858,700 ($433,650). Manufacturing—land, $196,600 ($48,300); improvements, $1,556,500 ($502,500); total, $1,753,100 ($550,800).

Merchants' stock—$930,643 ($746,065); manufacturers' stock—$857,722 ($612,477).

Sales Practice Charges Halted At Fond du Lac

Appleton Trio Had Been Scheduled to Appear Monday

SPECIAL TO THE POST-CRESCENT FOND DU LAC — Charges of illegal sales practices against three Appleton men were dismissed today at the request of Fond du Lac County Dist. Atty. Thomas Massey.

The three men had pleaded innocent and were to have appeared Monday in County Court Branch 2.

The men are Edward Rath Jr., Appleton, who was charged with 10 counts; William Brandt, 525 S. Schaeffer St., Appleton, two counts; and James Wisner, 629 E. Coolidge Ave., Appleton, two counts.

Massey said he requested the dismissal of the charges after conducting an extensive investigation. He said his study showed if there was an offense, it was not the fault of the three men, who were employed as salesmen for a central vacuum cleaner firm.

They were arrested in July and had been free on their own cognizance.

Peninsula Festival Performance 'Exciting'

Helen Boatwright, Katsuumi Niwa, Stanley Kolk Present DeBussy's 'L'Enfant Prodigue'

BY JACK RUDOLPH
Post-Crescent News Service
FISH CREEK — In a glittering sunburst of melody, created and framed by a young Claude DeBussy in velvety, 19th century sonorities slashed with vivid tonal brocade, soprano Helen Boatwright bade farewell to her first Peninsula Music Festival Wednesday night as two fine male singers made their debuts.

Already assured of a warm welcome any time she wants to come back, Mrs. Boatwright licked the stamp for her invitation with another warm and vital performance as the mother in DeBussy's rarely heard "L'Enfant Prodigue." Baritone Katsuumi Niwa and tenor Stanley Kolk were equally impressive in the same work.

"Vibrant, Exciting Life"

Thanks to the artistry of all three, plus the spirited playing of the Festival Orchestra, the musical story of the prodigal son was brought to vibrant, exciting life. The half-hour cantata "Lyric Scene" more than redeemed a less impressive presentation of another rarity, the complete concert version of Igor Stravinsky's "Pulcinella."

Mrs. Boatwright made her departure both memorable and regrettable with her sure control, accuracy of intonation and dramatic singing. Although at a disadvantage in the imperfectly balanced ensemble numbers, where she was often over-matched by the more powerful male voices, she sang with sensitivity, a full, firm tone and expressive shading.

Large Voice

Niwa, the Japanese baritone, impressed the audience with a big, resonant voice that easily held its own against the full resources of the orchestra. He sang with intensity and confidence, as did the young tenor.

Kolk is deceptive. A lyric tenor with a silvery sweetness of tone, his voice doesn't sound very big but when he opens up it soars with surprising strength. His performance prompted regrets that this was his only appearance — it would be interesting to hear him on his own.

"L'Enfant Prodigue," a period piece as graceful as a clipper ship under full sail and, for all its ingratiating melody, just as dated, got off to a colorful start and moved smoothly and steadily to a full-bodied, dramatic conclusion. Dr. Johnson kept it going briskly, the soloists were always ready and there were none of the deadening pauses that so often mar oratorio and cantata performances.

The Stravinsky ballet music, which occupied the first half of the program, was not so successful. More sophisticated and technically more intricate than the DeBussy, "Pulcinella" in not effective as a straight concert piece.

Like most ballet scores, it suffers when separated from the dancing for which it was designed. Since "Pulcinella" was not a success to begin with, has not been staged in years and the program notes were of little help, the audience had nothing with which it could identify.

Unsteady Opening

The orchestra opened the work unsteadily, needed about ten minutes to recover its balance and thereafter played with accustomed precision if not overwhelming conviction. The vocalists, try as they might, could not breathe life into a mediocre singing score.

Even if Dr. Johnson's expert ment cannot be classed as a complete success it did offer an unique listing experience. Most of the audience had never heard either work before, few will hear either again, and it is a virtual certainty that both works will never be presented on the same program in the future.

Referendum Rejected for Water Pipeline

nesday night that pollution levels are about the same in both bodies of water. Extra treatment will be required for Winnebago water, though, because of the algae.

Cost of the Winnebago project is estimated at about $2.5 million. Most of this system, according to reports, will be usable when the time comes that the city will go to Lake Michigan.

That the city eventually will construct a pipeline to Lake Michigan is inevitable, experts said Wednesday night. The cost of that, however, would be more than $15 million at current construction costs.

Several aldermen were worried the interest bonds for that $15 million would eat up enough funds to pay the cost of the Lake Winnebago project.

In addition, many believed the city eventually would join with others in the Valley area to pay the cost of a pipe to Lake Michigan.

Experts have said virtually all the cities in the Valley eventually will be forced to look elsewhere for water than the Fox River and Lake Winnebago.

10-Day Show Begins Friday

Best of Everything to be Better at 1965 State Fair

What's a fair? anyone needs an introduction to show around the exhibition annual Wisconsin Composers on the fairgrounds. The grounds are accessible from the East-West Expressway via the S. 84th Street entrance. The grounds extend from W. Greenfield Avenue on the south to W. Schlinger Avenue on the north and from S. 77th Street on the west to S. 84th Street on the east. There are entrances on the south, west and north.

And, of course, the rides on the midway will whirl, twist and careen throughout the 10-day affair. Pitchmen will strain their voices for the entire duration and never get hoarse.

Perhaps, most important of the non-grandstand shows will be the orchestra and band concerts and competitions. The official State Fair Band will give concerts every evening at 6 p.m. Forty-two high school bands will appear on the mall handstand. Military units from Great Lakes, Ill., will perform at various times throughout the fair. The winning compositions by Wisconsin composers in the State Fair of Wisconsin will be no exception.

But the best of everything will also put on their own better. There will be bigger shows. All of the armed forces stars, wilder rides, more musical and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will display their wares, missiles — The young people will have one of their 103 feet long — a show, art objects may show mementos. In Conservation more maturity. Roosters will Park a saw mill will operate, crow louder and teddy bears The State Water Pollution Committee will show insects, if you want to see them. The California Custom Car Caravan's zany autos will be displayed.

The number of entries in the various judging categories last year ran in the thousands. More entries are expected this year. Mounted Police will lead their judging goes on throughout the pack horses in a musical dance fair. Each day more ribbons that charge, but pleaded guilty and a rousing charge. Hardly appear and more prideful faces when the charge was reduced.

Not all of the entertainment will be in the grandstand. Mrs. Wisconsin will be chosen at the Women's Building. There will be contests in rooster crowing, baton twirling and horseshoe throwing.

Very few generalizations can be made about the lengthy schedule packed with events. The judging is most often done in the morning. The grandstand shows with the stars normally begin at 2:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. Auto races replace the grandstand show on Saturdays and Sundays. The afternoons are filled with music and contest events.

A complete schedule of events and a map of the fairgrounds will be handed to everyone at the entry gate. For the avid fairgoer or the one who wants to see a specific event, the best advice is to attend early and get in the schedule for succeeding days.

Each of the 10 days has a name that describes the events of the day. Opening day, Aug. 14, is West Allis Day, honoring the City of West Allis. Monday, Aug. 16, is Children's Day. Tuesday, Aug. 18, is Women's Day. Wednesday, Aug. 20, is Youth U.S. 41. Thursday, Aug. 21, is Fifty m.p.h. from the intersection of U.S. 41 to the intersection of County Trunk JJ.

Need for 4-Year Term For Governor Stressed

Justice Fairchild said. This certainly would provide for a larger amount of state building projects, but also would provide for a higher public debt, he added.

Reorganization of county government is an area which Justice Fairchild feels is in particular need of constitutional revision.

The present state constitution provides for "almost absolute uniformity" among the state's county governments, while the need varies widely as the size of the populace varies. Only Milwaukee County, with its primarily-urban population, is allowed any leeway from the constitutional norm, he said.

County Government

Suggested by the commission were four types of governments that the counties' voters themselves could choose, whether it be board or commission or other type. This idea, however, was defeated by the 1965 legislature.

The very means of revising the constitution was another area in which the Governor's Commission on Constitutional Revision sought reform. At present there are only two ways to amend the state constitution — by state convention and by legislation-referendum.

Steps toward gaining a constitutional convention are lengthy and difficult to achieve. First, a legislature must submit to the November electorate the question of whether a convention is desired. The legislature must then set up the calling of the convention. Already, there is a weakness, as, in partisan politics, one legislature often will disagree with another, and leaving the calling of the convention to the discretion of a body rival to the earlier one usually will achieve no coinciding result, Justice Fairchild said.

Selection of Delegate

The third step is the actual selection of delegates for the convention, delegates who — hopefully, if the original purpose of the convention is to be achieved — will agree with the policies of the two legislatures that called them.

Fourth is the drafting of the document, which must be done without deference to special-interest groups. Finally, submission to the people for a referendum will ratify it and the constitution has been amended.

The other means is not as complicated, but just as time-consuming. It involves passage by each of two succeeding legislatures, then ratification by referendum. A problem here is that often the amendment has received so little publicity that most voters are unfamiliar with it and unable to vote sensibly on it.

Justice Fairchild's commission recommendation to change this procedure would require a two-third vote by one legislature and referendum, rather than majority vote by two succeeding legislatures and the referendum.

Another major recommendation made by the commission, although not favored by Justice Fairchild, is a change in method of picking Supreme Court justices. The recommendation would have a non-partisan commission nominate men for the judgeships. After selection of one by the governor, that man would become a judge. His name would then be submitted to the state electorate for a "yes" or "no" answer on whether he should stay on the bench. It would eliminate the adversary system now used in which two men face each other on a ballot.

Convicted Man Borrows $1 From City Justice

KAUKAUNA — Oscar T. Jahns, municipal justice, had to loan a Michigan man $1 to get out of town after ordering him to pay a fine of $15 on a charge of drunk and disorderly conduct Wednesday morning.

Ronald H. Kaiser, 48, Manistique, Mich., pleaded guilty to the charge, but had no money to pay the fine. He indicated he would send the money if he could reach his brother at Beaver Dam and when this met the approval of Justice Jahns, the man expressed the need for funds to reach his brother.

The judge provided the money, but warned the man to be sure to include an extra $1 when returning the fine.

equal to those charged resident students on the Madison campus, which will rise to $300 by the fall semester.

Heavy Enrollments

Officials are not certain what the effect upon enrollments will be, but they are reasonably sure if there is any reaction from students and parents, it will be toward heavier enrollments of freshmen and sophomores at the centers.

The legislature's new state budget provides for a center of student fee schedule related to that of the state University four new freshmen-sophomore centers in Waukesha and Janesville for the fall of 1966, and in Baraboo and West Bend in the fall of 1968. Contracts for the residents at the state university construction of buildings in Janesville and Waukesha have been let.

Valley Delegates At Watertown Lutheran Meeting

Rezoning Petitions to Be Heard Sept. 6 at Outagamie Courthouse

The Outagamie County board of adjustment will conduct public hearings on three petitions to rezone land in the courthouse annex Sept. 8.

At 9 a.m., the board will hold a hearing to consider a petition from Donald Schmidt, Town of Center, to rezone property he owns within the town from agricultural to heavy industry.

At 10 a.m., a hearing will be conducted to consider a petition submitted by Roland H. Winter and Norma L. Winter, Town of Grand Chute, to rezone property from single family residence to two-family.

A petition submitted by Arthur D. Norton, Town of Grand Chute, to rezone property from agricultural to commercial will be considered at 11 a.m.

Menasha Woman Hurt When Hit by Bicycle

MENASHA—A 74-year-old Menasha woman is in satisfactory condition at Theda Clark Hospital with a possible hip injury after being struck by a bicycle while crossing a street.

Mrs. Agnes Price, 501 London St., was taken to the hospital in Lund's Ambulance after she was struck at the corner of Manitowish and Third Streets at 9:55 a.m. today. The cyclist, Joyce Vanstrom, 11, 821 Blank Road, was turning right onto Third Street from Manitowish when she struck Mrs. Price who was crossing in the North direction. Police said.

LBJ Faces Dilemma on United Nations Dues

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is on the spot. By Monday he must find a solution that will keep the United States off the hook. This is the hook: The Soviet Union, France, Belgium, South Africa, Yemen and eight Communist countries owe $108 million to the United Nations as their share of the cost of keeping the peace in the Middle East and the Congo.

Russia's share is $62.2 million. Russia refuses to pay, arguing that the way the U.N. decision to send peacekeeping forces into the Middle East and the Congo was made was illegal. France takes a similar position. But the United States has been making Russia its main target and insisted the Soviets must pay up or lose their vote in the U.N. General Assembly. If that happened, and Russia and her satellites quit the world organization, only a shell would be left. This argument for months has made a mess of the United Nations. The United States has been softening its stand. An American backdown, particularly at this time when the United States doesn't want Russia to get involved in the Vietnamese war, seems certain. Johnson's problem is how to send peacekeeping forces into the Middle East and the Congo Council — where the United States, Russia, Britain, France and Nationalist China all have a veto that can kill any action — had the right to use U.N. forces to stop aggression. But at the time of the Korean War the United Nations was able to intervene only because when the Security Council made the decision, Russia was absent. The United States didn't want to get caught in a narrow squeak like that again. So it proposed that the General Assembly, where all 114 member nations can vote but none has a veto, should be able to take action against a future aggressor. There were five dissenters on this: Russia and the Soviet Bloc. In due time the assembly 1956 voted to send a peacekeeping force into the Middle East and another into the Congo. Russia opposed both actions. France opposed the mission to the Congo. But the cost of keeping the peace runs into millions. France, Russia and the other 11 nations didn't pay their assessments for this cost. France took the position the assembly didn't have the power to do what it did, Russia argued that only the Security Council, where it can use a veto, has the right to vote funds for peacekeeping. But — Article 19 of the U.N. Charter says if a member falls behind for two years in what it owes toward U.N. expenses, it shall have no vote in the assembly. That was the American position under Johnson last year. Nevertheless, the United States didn't force an all-or-nothing showdown and this year its position seemed to soften. Some Republicans in Congress began to attack the Johnson administration for what they called backdown. Yet, in this case someone has to yield or the United Nations may go up in smoke. This is why it seems inevitable Johnson by Monday will have to work out some formula with which Russia can agree but still do it adroitly enough to keep critics off his neck and save some face for the United States. The 33-nation U.N. committee meets Monday.

McNamara Control Of Congress Failing

Legislators Ignore His Suggestions

By HARRY KELLY
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress' long if not ardent honeymoon with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara appears finally over.

His old mastery was missing as Congress put its foot down twice Wednesday — going its own way on a military pay bill and turning a deaf ear to his strong arguments for a merger of the Army reserves.

The Reserve plan, a particularly pet project, was killed at least for this year by a House Armed Services subcommittee headed by Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La.

Despite McNamara's arguments to the contrary, the subcommittee said the proposed merger would result in "an immediate and serious loss in combat readiness" and is "not in our national interest."

Military Pay

On the other side of Capitol Hill, the Senate was giving an 89-0 approval of a $1-billion military pay bill, much the same as already passed by the House, but more than twice as much as McNamara wanted. The House appeared likely to give quick approval to the Senate version.

A Defense Department statement, not quoting McNamara, said Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor and Gen. Harold K. Johnson, chief of staff, both believe the subcommittee's rejection of the merger plan "will compel the Army to retain nonessential units" rather than use the manpower to build up more important forces required by war contingency plans.

Necessary Result
Moreover, the statement said "failure to go forward with the realignment will necessarily result in more men being taken out of civilian life into the armed forces."

The statement noted the sub-

Military Hopeful About Merger Bill

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Military commanders in Wisconsin evidenced restrained optimism today over action of a House subcommittee apparently killing, at least for this year, plans to merge Army reserve units into the National Guard.

None was prepared to predict just what Congress might do about future reorganization proposals. But the temporary delay in the plan under which Wisconsin's famed 32nd National Guard Division would be reduced to brigade status was plainly welcome.

Maj. Gen. John A. Dunlap, commander of the 32nd, said he was "very pleased" but intended to adopt a wait and see attitude.

More outspoken was Brig. Gen. Robert P. Schulz, commander of the 84th Army Reserve Division.

Split Red Arrow

"This is just what we've been fighting for for the last eight or nine months," he said.

The Defense Department reorganization proposal on which an Armed Services Subcommittee declined to act would have committee's expressed willingness to consider future reorganizations and said the department "is prepared to continue discussions immediately."

McNamara is said still to have hopes of reviving the plan, or one similar to it, next year.

The proposal that was turned down was to streamline the reserves by cutting out low priority units and consolidating the high priority ones within the National Guard. When McNamara announced the plan Dec. 12 he expressed belief he needed no other congressional authority than a simple change in the appropriations bill.

Administration Proposals Get Nod

Senate Zips Through Legislation, Appointments at Record Speed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like a slot machine when someone hits the jackpot, the Senate sped out Wednesday a pay raise for 4 million service personnel. This was not, however, an unalloyed administration success. The increase is more than twice the $447 million President Johnson proposed and administration spokesmen argued for. The bill was sent to a Senate-House conference to iron out differences.

Working with a blinding speed foreign to its nature, the Senate —

Johnson Expected To Abandon Fight On U.N. Peace Fee

Upholding of Soviet Vote Might Be Goldwater Policy Revision

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.N. diplomats expect the United States to announce Monday that it is abandoning attempts to take away the Soviet Union's vote in the General Assembly because it refuses to pay $62.2 million in peacekeeping assessments.

This was generally believed to be the revised U.S. policy Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg has promised to unveil before the assembly's 33-nation committee on peacekeeping operations. Some Republican members of the U.S. Congress are certain to object.

Goldberg comes to New York today to confer with U.N. delegates on possible ways to solve the financial crisis caused by the refusal of the Soviet Union, France and 11 other nations to pay their peacekeeping dues.

The new U.S. chief delegate told newsmen in Washington that President Johnson probably will decide by Monday what the U.S. policy will be on the U.N. dues issue.

He said the President's decision will show whether the Johnson administration intends to drop its demand that the General Assembly apply Article 19 of the U.N. Charter. This calls for suspension of the assembly vote of countries two years in arrears.

Goldberg said he had been sounding out members of Congress on the U.N. question. After conferring with delegates in New York, he and Secretary of State Dean Rusk will work up a recommendation for Johnson this weekend.

Lacked Support
Even before the death of Goldberg's predecessor, Adlai E. Stevenson, U.S. officials conceded privately that the idea of a showdown on Article 19 was dead — primarily because the United States did not have enough support in the assembly to win such a contest.

A U.S. announcement that Article 19 would not be invoked would leave the next move up to the delinquent countries. The Soviet Union has promised that it will make a substantial volun-

Byrnes Hits Compensation Revisions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John W. Byrnes, R - Wis., says increased benefits under the unemployment insurance system should be reserved for times of economic recession.

The Green Bay Republican challenged testimony Wednesday before the House Ways and Means Committee by Undersecretary of Labor Joseph W. Barr in support of administration proposals to revise the system.

Barr said the proposed increased benefits, extended coverage and new federal program of payments for the long term unemployed would help stabilize the economy in the event of a downturn. But he admitted under questioning by Byrnes that in times of good economic health, unemployment insurance had little or no impact as an economic stabilizer.

"So why extend these benefits automatically?" asked Byrnes. "Why not limit them to the times when you need them?" Byrnes, ranking GOP member of the committee, is joint sponsor with committee chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of a bill that would tie increased unemployment benefits to the economy, to be used only when business slumps.

Draft Boards to Get Tough On Deferments for Students

By JERRY BUCK
NEW YORK (AP) — Some Selective Service boards say they will tighten rules deferring college students from the draft in the Viet Nam crisis.

Draft boards that have been liberal in giving students deferments in the past say they are going to get tough to meet heavy draft calls beginning next month.

A sampling by The Associated Press of 20 states showed 13 planning to review the status of deferred students. At least two others in the survey are considering such action.

"If we need men to draft, one place we'll look is the college classroom," said Lt. Col. Wayne Rhodes, deputy state director of the Indiana Selective Service System.

The look to the campus came after President Johnson ordered the monthly draft jumped from 17,000 to 35,000 men by November.

10-Day Delay Expected on Cause of Blast

Check Continues of Missile Silo That Exploded Killing 53

SEARCY, Ark. (AP) — The Air Force says it will probably be at least 10 days before it's known what caused an explosion and fire in a Titan II missile complex, killing 53 civilians.

A 30-man investigation team continued today its inspection of the blackened launch tube of America's mightiest ballistic missile — scene of the worst tragedy in the history of America's space and missile systems.

Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert and an Arkansas congressional delegation went into the underground complex Wednesday, but returned to Washington without revealing any findings.

Zuckert said it will probably be 10 days to two weeks before "we have the answers to the questions now being asked."

He toured the site with Sens. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., and John L. McClellan, D-Ark., Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., and Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas.

Only two of the 55 workmen who were modifying the silo's physical plant survived Monday's explosion and fire.

U. S. Cold to Brazil Request on Tariffs

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — A U.S. delegation had a mixed reaction to a Brazilian proposal that Latin-American commodities be given preferential tariff treatment by the United States, a high source reports.

$80 Million Bill Passed Pay Hike for Military Could Start in Month

WASHINGTON (AP) — The key man in the House is American military personnel Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., will get a total monthly pay increase of about $80 million as chairman of the House Armed Services Committee and chief sponsor of the House bill. Aides House agrees to set aside a pay raise he was studying the Senate measure it passed and accept a Senate-passed bill.

The Senate approved its measure Wednesday. Like the House bill, the $1-billion Senate measure contains more than twice as much as President Johnson asked. But sponsors expect the President to sign it.

The raises would go to active and reserve personnel in the Army, Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Gendetic Survey and Public Health Service and petty officers.

Chief Differences
For commissioned and warrant officers, the Senate measure passed by the two houses gave a flat raise of 6 per cent, while House increases range from 5 per cent for Army officers, warrant officers and tains and Navy lieutenants to 15.8 per cent for some chief warrant officers.

Normally, such differences are worked out by a joint Senate-House Conference Committee. But House acceptance of the Senate bill would speed up officers in the same category an average of 22 per cent more.

victim of his own foolishness.

East took the king of diamonds with the ace and returned the nine of spades. South lost a finesse to the king, and back came the jack of spades. South held off, but had to win the third spade.

Now South had to lead a diamond to dummy's ten since he couldn't afford to lead the jack of diamonds. East shrewdly allowed dummy's ten of diamonds to hold the trick.

South could get back to his hand with the ace of clubs to set up the diamonds, but then could never get to his hand again to cash the diamonds. After a long struggle South was down two.

Win in Dummy

It was correct to go after the diamonds, but South could not afford to waste one of his precious high clubs at the first trick. He must win the first trick in dummy with the king of clubs and lead the king of diamonds from dummy.

East wins and leads spades, and South loses a finesse and refuses the second spade. After winning the third round of spades, South leads a diamond to dummy's ten.

The difference is that South still has two high clubs in his hand. He leads to the queen of clubs to return the jack of diamonds, and can get back with the ace of clubs to cash the rest of the diamonds. South wins three diamonds instead of only one, and this is enough to assure the contract.

The Ailing House Rustproof Nails Help Fix Roof

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Fritz's plans after that are indefinite. If he returns to Fox River Tractor, he says he may not have the same job. Then again he may find some attractive spot along the way that lures him to settle there. He doesn't know what's ahead, but he isn't worried. He's skillful with English and has a trade with which to earn a living. Later, Fritz says he plans to enter the Swiss equivalent of the Peace Corps and teach his trade, possibly in India. To do this, he has to be skilled in English, and his stay here is doing that for him. Fritz also speaks some French, in addition to his own Swiss German dialect.

Misses Mountains

Fritz says everything is different about Wisconsin. Switzerland goes 'up'. Wisconsin spreads out. He misses the mountains and skiing. "I like a good hill," he says. The mountains and his girl were the only things he missed.

Elisabeth thinks she could live here. She likes the wide open spaces. She is a teacher and must go back, however, as she is committed to two more years of school. Uli also is busy building a career, studying to be a station master on the Swiss railway. He's already working but is not yet a master.

The family lives on a farm, and there are two other sisters and a brother at home. Perhaps one day, says Fritz, they'll come to visit too. "They'd make a commercial for America," he says in the vernacular.

By mid-October, when Uli and Elisabeth leave, all three will know America better than many Americans. They plan to sleep in the station wagon and do their own cooking.

"We want to see it all," they agree.

Don't expect immediate results: patience is definitely an important ingredient. If necessary, you can add some very fine abrasive, such as powdered rottenstone or even a flick of ash from a cigar.

Ann Advises Getting Rid of Unrealistic View of Lost Love

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How does a woman recover when The Love of Her Life says, "Good-bye?"

I was married to a man who was more like a father to me than a husband. He was 20 years my senior and died after we were married only four years. Then I met an attractive, intellectually stimulating, physically exciting man. I fell in love for the very first time. We had a mad, ecstatic affair and I gave myself to him body and soul. We talked of marriage and I was sure we were matched in heaven. My dreams collapsed when he told me I'd better forget about him because we were not right for each other.

It has been several months now and I can't get him out of my mind. I compare my love with every man I meet and there is no comparison. Please tell me how can a woman recover from a broken heart?—Empty

Dear Empty: Tell yourself it is self-defeating to cling to bits and pieces of something that no longer exists.

The woman who grieves over The Man Who Got Away has a talent for screening out all the unpleasant aspects of the relationship. She remembers only the heavenly moments. As time passes and memory dims, the dead romance becomes more beautiful in death than it ever was in life.

The mind can accommodate only one thought at a time. Substitute another thought—something real and constructive for the fantasy.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I worked as a hotel maid for ten years and now I work in a motel. It's the same difference. The people who drive up in the most expensive cars and have the fanciest luggage are the biggest pigs. I hope you will print something about the way folks behave when they get outside their own homes. It's disgraceful.

Can you imagine grown peo-

They check out leaving the TV on and the dirty water in the bath tub. The worst pigs of all leave no tid for the maid who has to clean up the mess and make the room look perfect for the next guests.

If you print this, thousands of hard-working women will thank you.—Fed Up With People

Dear Fed: Here it is, and you're welcome. I strongly recommend that neat folks who travel leave 50 cents a night for the maid. Pigs who travel should leave $1.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My

married daughter lives in another city but I visit her quite often. She has teen-age children and a nice husband. Since her marriage she has developed a habit which I'm sure is keeping her back socially. She laughs too loud and too long.

It's plain to me that the girl has many acquaintances but no friends. I can see people cringe and actually withdraw from her before she gets a chance to show her fine qualities. She is exhausting, both to herself and to others.

I cannot discuss this with her because she would resent it. Is there any way I can help?—D. Troit

Dear D.: The girl's loud laughter is not the problem. It is only the symptom of a deeper problem which she is trying to cover up. If her husband is an understanding man suggest that he urge her to get professional help. If not, then suggest it yourself and risk the resentment.

No teen-ager is as confident as he appears. Get clued in. Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Daughter, 4, Has Parents Worn With Lack of Sleep

BY DR. EVE JONES

Dear Dr. Jones: My 4-year-old daughter has a sleeping problem. She takes an hour nap around 2 p.m., then doesn't go to sleep at night until after 10 p.m.

During the night, she wakes every few hours, saying she's lonesome because she has to sleep alone in her bedroom. She starts crying if I don't go to her room. And this makes us all very irritable because we don't get enough sleep. How can I get her to sleep through the night? Mrs. R. O.

Louise Davis Answers:

It isn't necessary that you give a shower or any kind of party for the fiancée of your friend's son. Initiating one would be awkward as you have never met the girl and it would be a far-out gesture for the sake of friendship with the boy's mother. I'm sure that your friend wouldn't expect you to entertain. Attending the wedding and sending a gift are enough.

Watch for 'Wrong Moves' In Occupying New Home

If you are soon to move into a new house — and particularly if it's your admission into the fraternity of home owners — don't spoil the happiness of the occasion by being the victim of a "wrong move."

Problems connected with a move are not normal to daily living. Nonetheless they can and do arise. And frequently they are due to a lack of understanding.

To help you avoid the pitfalls of moving, to avoid disappointment and misunderstanding, and to help keep the cost of moving down, a leading world-wide mover of household goods offers these precautions and suggestions:

1. Understand that an estimate is not a firm bid. Don't be misled by a "low bid." An estimate has no bearing on the computation of the final charges. Rates for local moves are based on time and mileage. Long-distance moves are computed on the basis of mileage and weight.
2. Know the extent of the mover's liability. The mover's liability is usually limited. On long-distance moves it's 30 cents per pound per article. In other words, if a chair valued at $200 and weighing only 20 pounds is lost or completely destroyed in shipment, you would recover a maximum of $6. Limitations on local movers vary. In any event, you may purchase comprehensive protection from the mover. This serves to extend the limit of the mover's liability to the full valuation of your goods.
3. Get rid of things you won't need in your new home. This doesn't mean a complete house-cleaning. But this is a good time to take inventory of what you have. Discard, give away or sell any items you won't be using in your new home. This will help to reduce the weight of your shipment, and the cost as well.
4. Don't pack things you aren't qualified to pack. Packing services are extra, but for dishes, china, glassware and other breakables, the cost is worth it. If you choose to pack these things yourself, the mover cannot be responsible for breakage. Grocery cartons are not as sturdy as the china boxes used by professional movers. The cushioning materials the movers use are superior to anything you may have on hand.
5. Dismantle, disconnect and remove articles attached to your property. This includes television antennas, hi-fi and stereo sets, window fans and air conditioners, curtain and drape fixtures, wall clocks, etc. If the mover has to do these things, it will cost you extra.
6. Do what you can to expedite the move. Anything you do to expedite the loading or unloading of your furniture on a local move will help reduce the price.
7. Deal with a reputable mover. Investigate the mover's reputation and reliability before you sign the order. If in doubt, make inquiries of your local Better Business Bureau. Dealing with a reputable mover assures you of better service and better handling of your furniture. And if something does go wrong, adjustments can be made to the satisfaction of the shipper.

The Hamptons Termed 'Really Chic'

BY JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
THE HAMPTONS, N.Y. (AP) — Last year the really chic thing to do here was to go discotheque dancing at The Wharf, a picturesque shipyard barn with an incongruous crystal chandelier.

This year the chic crowd presses across the gangplank onto a noisy, smoky, congested, fishnet-draped, lantern-lit railroad barge once used to shuttle vegetables across New York harbor.

There they writhe on a tiny patch of mahogany to the frenzied beat of the Rascals, billed as the hottest new 'rock' group in the East.

Or they sit on lobster pots and barrels and try to identify the celebrities on deck. Anybody who is anybody checks onto The Barge before the night fades away.

It is also chic to roam through the streets in convertibles and climb out over the door to fly kites at the country club pool; to crash houseparties after 2 a.m.; to sleep 40 winks on the floor of somebody's cottage and start all over again.

Always Chic
The Hamptons on Long Island, site of summer homes for moneyed people, have always been chic and colorful with miles of dunes, beaches, fishing boats, windmills, and high-heeled estates hiding old mansions and sprawling, imported lawns. It was always chic but somewhat until it became very chic to have fun day and night. Especially night. Now The Hamptons are chic and swinging.

Oldtimers despair the steady encroachment of motels and cooperative hotels; beer cans in roadside gutters; parked cars filled with sleeping, party-exhausted teen-agers too broke to invest in a night's lodging.

They deplore the influx of groups of single people who chip in to cover the cost of a summer house rental and spend the minimum for the property's maintenance.

And they complain bitterly about party noise.

However, hospitality is a very chic thing in The Hamptons. On short notice there is hardly ever any room at any inn, and anybody cottage sofa or floor is fair game.

As raspy-voiced, piano-fingering jet set favorite, Hugh Shannon, explains it, "all of a sudden Prince Miguel was on the doorstep with about 100 pieces of luggage and a lovely companion and with no place to go but my house. We managed, though."

Always Room
So did Carol Channing and husband, Rona Jaffe and friends, etc. etc. The Shannon seaside cottage is always bustling and bouncing with international fun-loving celebrities.

It also follows that absolutely everybody is welcome at everybody else's party. When Christina Paolozzi Bellin and a few girlfriends tossed a house party 1,000 persons showed up. Approximately the same number turned up again at designer Jacques Kaplan's bash.

On Friday's night life gets a slow start after the Long Island Railroad club have disgorged the last commuter and the sports cars of affluent New Yorkers have tediously crawled through two and a half hours of traffic. On Saturday and Sunday it starts at noon and lasts till dawn.

Along with The Barge the chic stops to make include the Mid-Hampton Country Club where Shannon, the daytime party host, becomes Shannon the nighttime saloon singer with the same sophisticates of the day encircling him worshipfully at the piano like kiddies in kindergarten.

At the Live Oaks, Madam Spivak, a portly veteran of European boite life bounces and thumps at a piano and belts out Noel Coward lyrics in a husky, talky style.

Young Mixture
At the Bull's Head Inn a young democratic mixture of debutantes and secretaries, well-heeled college lads and poor working boys, spills onto the lawn surrounding the white-pillared mansion. Some are oblivious to the pandemonium around them. For instance, Patricia Hemingway, chased a playful guest who had been cracking a bull whip, none of the romancers broke their clinches.

Mitty's General Store, a discotheque, also attracts the youthfully exuberant in such vast numbers that the local police keep a watchful eye on it, even though it has its own able bouncers.

Proper Fashions
It is very chic for ladies to wear bellbottom trousers and lace pajamas to the discotheques: hair long and straight; false eye lashes; cowboy hats; sandals by night and bare feet by day; bikinis at poolside — but never in the water.

It is very chic for men to wear open necked shirts and ascot ties, blazer or madras jackets and loud slacks bought at a men's store that has blue polka dotted awnings.

It is very chic at The Hamptons to the discotheques.

Attic Junior Workshopers Ready Their Production of Don Jones' 'The Big Top'

BY JINGO
The prose of the Fox Cities community theater season is just about completed as the Riverside Players of Neenah and the Attic Theater in Appleton put the finishing touches on their musicals — monumental works.

Jingo

While not set to music, the Attic's "The Lady's Not For Burning" can't really be called prose since Christopher Fry has filled it with poetry. Whether the lines scan or not they still are lyrical and theater-goers who want to treat themselves well will hie themselves to the Lawrence Music-Drama Center sometime before 7:15 p.m. Sunday when the lights go up on the new thrust stage in the Experimental Theater for the last time.

As soon as "Lady" goes dark, the Attic will turn over the praise would be too much for thrust stage to its junior workshop for a production of a Don Jones original created especially for the youngsters, "The Big Top." The show will open Monday afternoon and run every afternoon until it runs out of audience, Jones said.

Work Like 'Demons'

The Junior Workshop personnel, he reports, have been a joy to him this season. They arrive early, he says, and leave late and work like demons in between.

This may corroborate his statement. The Workshop has been busy backstage in all of the Attic productions, working lights and the props and building the sets. The members also have a number of roles in the Attic's "Bye, Bye, Birdie" opening a week from Saturday while also carrying the brunt of the production and performance of "The Big Top." The summer must have been a short one with that kind of schedule.

The talk in the theater circles these days is filled with superlatives and exclamations of wonder and delight. The subject matter is the fine "Camelot" production by the Oshkosh Junior Theater. No amount of the Attic will turn over the praise would be too much for thrust stage to its junior good will should stand it well next season.

The original that launched the Green Bay Harlequin Players has become a matter of curiosity and to satisfy the wonder of latecomers Jack Frisch and company have extended the "Pictures at an Exhibition" run to another performance at 8:15 p.m. Friday at the UW-Green Bay Center. While the Max Herman piece isn't world-shaking, the manner in which the Harlequins handle it makes the trip north worthwhile.

Since expectation and frustration are two good ingredients of drama there is a lot of drama going on in the arts circles in the Fox Cities as the Sunday date of the Appleton Gallery of Arts City Park art fair approaches. The free exhibition of arts and crafts is always a big draw and if the weather is at all pleasant several thousands of people will be winding their way to the park starting at 10 a.m. Sunday. For a change of pace, the arts fair can't be beat. See you there.

Open Irish Play At Green Ram Summer Theatre

BARABOO—The Green Ram Theatre will open Irish playwright Brendan Behan's rollicking comedy, "The Hostage" Friday evening. The play, full of satirical songs and ballads, opens on an Irish jig and ends with a song sung by the presumably dead hero.

Pauline Walsh, Burlington, and Wil Denson, Randolph, star as overseers of a lodging house. Owner of the house is played by David Gilsdall, Baldwin. Judy Blix, Eau Claire, appears as a social worker.

The part of the young cockney soldier being held hostage is taken by Bill Moyle, Madison, a student at Wisconsin State University Oshkosh. Other featured performers are Sue Salm, Edgewood College senior from Neenah, as a barmaid and Lawrence Heagle, Eau Claire, who portrays one of the play's off-beat characters and provides guitar accompaniment for the show's 14 songs.

Cuba Executes 3 'CIA Agents'

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Three men charged with being agents of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency were executed by firing squads in Cuba, Havana radio said Wednesday.

The executed men were identified as Roberto Fernandez Cobo, Raul Pereira Castaneda and Roger Sabino Sopena, all crew members of the Cuban freighter "Gonzalez Lanes."

The broadcast, monitored here, said men were trained to use incendiary devices, radio transmitters and secret writing materials.

Justice Wins In Drama on Defenders

BY TV SCOUT

9-10 (Channel 2) — "The Siege" on The Defenders is a taut, absorbing show which has fine performances from E. G. Marshall and guest Robert Redford. Redford is an escaped convict who comes to Marshall's office and announces he is going to kill Marshall for railroading him to prison seven years earlier. (R)

6-8:30 (Channel 4-5) — Some very un-Boon like doings as Daniel Boone begins a two-parter. Boone (Fess Parker) "betrays" the male residents of Booneborough into being sold to the English government at Fort Detroit; then he "kills" Mingo (Ed Ames). (R)

7-7:30 (Channel 11) — The Donna Reed Show has a lot of visual gags. If not much action in a complicated plot about damages to Donna's car, and who caused them. (R)

7-8 (Channel 2) — Mixed-up marriages and an attractive sports car driver provided the fuel for murder on Perry Mason, in "The Case of the Injured Innocent," an episode from the 1961 season. (R)

7:30-8 (Channel 11) — My Three Sons has a cute outing. (R)

To Your Good Health

Control Youths' Diet to Prevent Excess Weight

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: How many calories a day should a growing boy have to lose weight? My son is eight years old, four feet, two inches tall, and weighs 88 pounds. He has gained 23 pounds in one year. Mrs. J. D.

Youngsters of this pre-puberty age quite often pack on some extra weight but not, of course, to this extent. He is about 25 pounds overweight, and most of it accumulated during the last year.

If you give him 1,000 to 1,200 calories a day in well selected foods (plenty of protein, which is lean meat, eggs, cheese, fish, and a goodly supply of milk to provide calcium for bones—skim milk ought to help give him what he needs yet cut calories) he should lose some pounds. Naturally he needs fruit and vegetables, but if you select the low-calorie ones, he can get his vitamins and roughage without piling up calories.

But here's an important point: When a child becomes chubby, he also has an inclination to sit around instead of exercising. This is extremely important. Exercise does more than build muscle. It uses up excess calories which otherwise would turn to fat.

Restrict Calories

Naturally, and this is fundamental, watch out for the cookies, candy, pop, cake and other pastries, and so on — the foods that have lots of calories. The "treats," the between-meal snacks, do more than the ordinary meals at the table to make kids fat!

It might be wise to have the boy checked by your doctor, to be sure that no thyroid or other glandular defect is involved. Most likely the answer will be negative, and the real reason will be that he's eating more than he uses up in energy and in building his growing body. But if you have such a check made, you'll have that much more assurance that you are doing the right thing in limiting his calories, and giving him most of them in the foods that will build him strong instead of build him fat.

You are wise to be concerned. Get him back into good eating and exercising habits, despite his protests, if he voices any, and you'll have a strong, healthy son. If you let him sit and eat, and eat and sit, you'll condemn him to a life of being too fat, and too hungry. It will also be too short, because overweight definitely shortens lives.

Dear Dr. Molner: My neighbor says toast doesn't have nearly as many calories as plain bread. I say they are the same. Who is right?—J. R. B. You are right. Toasting doesn't destroy calories (unless you burn the toast).

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible, under any circumstances, for soft water used for drinking to cause heart attacks?—D. B.

No.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any cure for "Hot flashes"? I am 63 and have been having them since menopause.—C. McL.

Discuss this with your doctor. In general, the hot flashes end after the immediate time of menopause, but some women, who have hyperactive nervous systems can have these "flashes" long afterward. Often a mild sedative or tranquilizer is all that is necessary. Occasionally women your age will benefit by judicious use of hormones.

For a comprehensive discussion on how to cope with the change of life, including scores of pertinent questions and their answers, send for my booklet, "Make Menopause Easier," enclosing 25 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to cover cost of printing and handling. ## Buffalo Voters Face Tricky Election Choice

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Opposing political candidates in a South Buffalo district will avoid name-calling in their campaign for a council seat.

The Republicans endorsed John V. Fahey, 46, a railroad engineer. Democrats picked a detective John P. Fahey.

The two are not related. No other candidates have declared for the seat.

NOTICE RESIDENTS OF APPLETON VOLUNTARY TEST BAN ON OUTSIDE BURNING

The City of Appleton requests you to voluntarily:
1. Stop all outside burning during July, August and September, 1965.
2. Collect and store all material which you usually burn outside and place on the curb for pick-up by city crews on your regular rubbish collection day every other week.
3. Cooperate during this three month "no burning" period so that the city can study the effects of this test ban and determine what steps are necessary to provide the City with an orderly and convenient way to eventually eliminate all outside burning in Appleton.

This ban is placed on a voluntary basis to avoid causing undue hardship or inconvenience; however, your cooperation and patience will be appreciated.
If for reasons of fire safety, excessive accumulation or health hazard, it is not possible to save part or all of your burnable waste material, then it is permissible to burn outside providing burning is done according to the Fire Code Regulations explained below.

EXISTING BURNING REGULATION SUMMARY
HOURS—Between 2:00 P.M. and 7:00 P.M.
TYPE OF BURNER—All burners shall have their sides wholly or securely closed and covered with wire screening which shall not be smaller than No. 8 (1/8 inch in diameter) wire. The wire mesh shall not be more than one inch across.
LOCATION OF BURNER—No closer than 5 feet from a public sidewalk. No closer than 10 feet from trees, shrubs, bushes or fences. No closer than 15 feet from any building.
DEFECTIVE BURNER—An unimproved type burner which becomes defective shall be replaced by a new one.
MATERIALS WHICH SHALL NOT BE BURNED—Garbage, organic (including animal waste), paint, rubber or plastic material or other materials producing an offensive odor shall not be burned in residential lots.
OPEN FIRES—No open fires may be started without a permit from the Fire Department. No permit shall be granted for open fires on a public street or other public thoroughfare.
COMMERCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL BURNING—To avoid violations, business and industrial establishments should consult with the Fire Department for existing ordinances on burning.

ENFORCEMENT OF EXISTING BURNING REGULATIONS
The Fire and Police Departments shall enforce the Fire Prevention Code as follows:
1. City code inspections will be made regularly by the burning extension demands and all complaints will be investigated. Every effort shall be made to inform the residents of Appleton of the need for and the desirability of cooperating in the voluntary test ban as well as the regulations governing outside burning.
2. Any resident of the City found to be violating the burning ordinance will be issued a written warning for the first offense. If the warning is ignored, a citation will be issued for a violation.
3. After this second citation, a citation will be issued for a violation. No further action will be taken if he has complied. If a violation citation is issued and the resident has continued to burn despite the warning, then a second ticket shall be issued and appropriate action taken to prosecute the violator.
4. A second complaint against a resident who has previously been issued a written warning shall result in his being issued a second ticket if a violation is again found to exist. This second ticket shall also result in appropriate action being taken to prosecute the offender.

City Clerk

By Sylvanus M. Duvall, Ph.D. and Evelyn M. Duvall, Ph.D.

ARE CHILDREN REALISTS?
YES ☐ NO ☐

No. Anyone who has had the experience with the fantastic stories that children tell knows better. Most fairy tales, too, are directed at and beamed to trace this back to babyhood. The baby does not want very much.

And whatever he wants, he seems to get without effort on his part—apparently merely by wishing for it. No wonder large numbers of adults have never outgrown their infantism, and still think or at least hope that "wishing will make it so."

Inequalities should be abolished! Right — Wrong —

Wrong, and actually, nobody claims they should be. Our modern society requires that some people be superior in fixing teeth or cars, while others are superior in quite different specialized knowledge.

What we really want is fair treatment, and this requires that inequalities be based upon relevant differences such as personal competencies rather than irrelevant differences such as religion or race.

Babies don't grow on trees! But when Junior wants to know where they do come from, how do you answer? This age-old problem is a thing of the past when you send for "How to Tell Your Child About Sex." # 'Big Back' Offense to Haunt Packers

GREEN BAY—Vince Lombardi, as every good Packer fan knows, is the acknowledged originator of pro football's "big back" offense.

The faithful also are aware that the erstwhile block of granite's sledgehammer approach has paid dazzling dividends, playing a major role in the Pack's surge to three Western Division championships and consecutive world titles in 1961-62, not to mention a glittering overall record of 58-20-2.

But it may be coming back to haunt the Packer perfectionist in Saturday night's Bishop's Charities rendezvous with the New York Giants in Lambeau Field, which has been rechristened and re-expanded since last the local prides cantered there.

With Vengeance

The Giants, it develops, have embraced the "big back" credo with a vengeance. Articulate Allie Sherman, who recently acquired social security status with the signing of a 10-year contract, initiated the project in 1964 when he drafted Southern Illinois' massive (6-3, 248) Ernie Wheelwright, who has to be the football's biggest fullback, and Stanford's 6-3, 225-pound Steve Thurlow.

So happy was Sherman with these acquisitions, he plucked Auburn blockbuster Tucker Frederickson, 6-1 and 230, Ernie Koy of Texas, a substantial 6-3 and 235; Yale's Chuck Mercein, 6-1 and 230, and Smith Reed, 6-0 and 218 of Alcorn A and M from 1964's collegiate crop.

The Pack's "Bull Elephant" backfield, it must be admitted, pales ever so slightly by comparison with these legitimate "Giants," with Jim Taylor, Paul Hornung, Tom Moore and rookie Junior Coffey "All in the vicinity of 218) as its most substantial citizens.

Don Smith, Giant publicist and Author of note ("Y. A. Tittle" and two other poems), proudly proclaims "I don't think the Giants ever had six ball carriers of this size and ability in camp before.

"Thurlow and Koy both throw the option very well, either left or right," continued Smith, who arrived in Green Bay Wednesday afternoon with the avowed purpose of briefing Packerland on the "new" Giants. "They're all very good receivers—and all good blockers."

Foxes Snap Losing Skein at 4 Games

Ted Miller, Pawlowicz Halt Hawks

WATERLOO, Iowa — Ted Miller, with an assist from Hank Pawlowicz in relief, halted the Fox Cities Foxes' latest losing streak at four by defeating Waterloo Wednesday night, 6-2.

Miller pitched hitless ball before giving up both Waterloo runs with two out in the fourth. Pawlowicz came on in the eighth with runners in scoring position to save the win.

The Foxes and Hawks will meet again tonight in the series finale. The Foxes will then enjoy a 2-day rest before opening a home stay with a doubleheader against Quad Cities Sunday.

The Foxes scored a pair of runs in the third when Ray Wolkowski doubled down the right field line and Elmore Hill blasted a long homer over the fence in center.

Gets Second Hit

Hill opened the sixth for the Foxes with his second hit and advanced on Curt Motton's single. Hill scored from second when a doubleplay attempt on Bob Connolly's grounder went haywire, the relay going into the dugout.

Three more runs scored in the eighth when Motton got his third single, stole second and scored on Jim Rouse's hit to right. Connolly then doubled to left for another run and scored on the same play when the throw from the outfield went into the stands.

The Hawks scored in the fourth when Jim Williams got the first hit off Miller, a single to left and Bill Conigliaro followed with a home run.

Miller got into trouble in the eighth after two were out, walking a batter and yielding a double to Williams. Pawlowicz came in and retired Conigliaro and breezed through the ninth.

Pizarro Hurls 1-Hitter Against Washington; Twins Beaten by Yanks

Juan Allows Single In Fifth; Orioles Lose to Red Sox

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Staff Writer

Al Lopez may have solved the enigma of Juan Pizarro's on-again, off-again fast ball but the Washington Senators don't have a clue.

Pizarro, mystery man of Lopez' Chicago White Sox pitching staff, baffled the Senators with a one-hitter Wednesday night as the Sox won the second game of a doubleheader 7-0.

The Puerto Rican southpaw, a 19-game winner in 1964, had failed to finish in nine previous starts and had won only one game—exactly two months ago against Washington—before his one-hitter.

Pizarro's ineffectiveness mystified Manager Lopez until it was traced to a torn triceps tendon in his left shoulder late in June. He went on the disabled list for 30 days and the rest apparently has worked wonders.

"Never Complained"

"All season he never complained of a sore arm and he never pitched as if he had one," Lopez said when the injury was discovered. "I was encouraged a couple of weeks ago when he pitched against Boston because he showed me a fast ball for the first time. But the next time out he had nothing.

"He has to have his fast ball working to be any good."

Pizarro's fast ball was humming against the Senators. Woodie Held, who had paced Washington to a 5-2 first-game victory, got the only nightcap hit—a lead-off single in the fifth inning. The only other Senators to reach base were Don Lock and Don Zimmer, who walks in the first and eighth, respectively.

50,837 to See Packers, Giants

Katcavage to Test Wright

GREEN BAY (AP)—The biggest crowd ever to attend a professional football game in Wisconsin, 50,837, will swarm into Lambeau Field Saturday night to see the Green Bay Packers and the New York Giants meet in an exhibition game.

The record is made possible by the addition of 12,000 permanent seats at the south end of City Stadium—renamed Lambeau Field only last week in honor of the late Packer coach and founder, the late E. L. (Curly) Lambeau.

The expanded stadium now forms a horseshoe. The permanent seats closed the south end of the stadium and added wings on the north.

This will be the fifth annual Bishop's Charity Game—the first test under fire for Coach Vince Lombardi's 1965 club. Lombardi has praised the squad as being one of the best conditioned groups he has ever had in training camp.

Baptism of Fire

One Packer who spent most of his rookie season on the bench last year will really get a baptism of fire against the Giants. Steve Wright, 6-foot-6, 250-pound former Alabama tackle, will face one of pro football's roughest and toughest linemen,

It was the third American League one-hitter among 13 pitched in the majors this season and all three have been against the Senators. Held got the only hit off Cleveland's Luis Tiant June 16 and Lock deprived Detroit's Dennis McLain of a five-inning no-hitter in a rain-abbreviated game July 3.

Elsewhere in the AL, the New York Yankees snapped first-place Minnesota's winning streak at six by edging the Twins 5-4; Detroit swept a doubleheader from Kansas City 6-2 and 5-4 in 10 innings; Cleveland blanked Los Angeles 6-0 on Tiant's three-hitter and Boston whipped Baltimore 8-3.

Pizarro, who has lowered his earned run average from 7.20 to 4.29 in three appearances since his return to the active list, evened his record at 2-2. He also touched off a four-run rally in the third with a single off loser Mike McCormick. Danny Cater doubled two runs across in the inning.

Kirkland Homers

Held rapped a single and two doubles, driving in two runs, and Willie Kirkland homered as the Senators took the opener behind left-hander Pete Richert.

The Yankees rallied for five runs in the fifth inning, two on Bobby Richardson's single, to erase a 3-0 Minnesota lead. Mel Stottlemyre picked up his 14th victory, tying losing pitcher Jim Grant for the league lead.

Dick McCulliffe's grand slam homer backed Joe Sparrma's pitching in the Tigers' first-game victory and Don Wert broke up the nightcap with a run-scoring single in the 10th after relief pitcher Jack Aker had hit two straight batters.

Max Alvis stroked three hits for Cleveland, including a three-run homer that snapped a

Janesville Wins In BRL Tourney

OWENSBORO, Ky. (AP)—Janesville, the Wisconsin representative in the Ohio Valley regional tournament of Babe Ruth League Baseball, scored its first victory Wednesday night.

Janesville defeated Cincinnati, Ohio, 5-3 to even up its tournament record at 1-1. The teams are playing a double elimination schedule and Cincinnati has been eliminated.

In the other game Wednesday, Owensboro eliminated East Detroit, Mich., 11-9.

Aaron Homers Twice, Alou Once as Braves Defeat Cardinals, 5-2

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A suicide squeeze backfired and Gene Oliver apparently lost track of the number of outs, but the Milwaukee Braves kept rolling along anyway Wednesday night, defeating St. Louis 5-2.

Henry Aaron and Felipe Alou eradicated the mistakes with home runs to account for all the Braves' scoring. Aaron blasted two, his 24th and 25th, to drive in four runs. Alou hit a solo shot, his 19th.

The win was the Braves' 22nd in 30 games and left them trailing the first-place Los Angeles Dodgers by two games.

Oliver's apparent lapse occurred in the second inning after he had walked and been shaken up while sliding into second for a stolen base.

Frank Bolling struck out for the first out. Then Woody Woodward lifted a popup. Oliver took off when the ball was hit and was practically at home plate when the ball was caught by the second baseman who quickly doubled Oliver up.

Alou broke a scoreless tie in the third inning with his home run. After Mack Jones popped out, Aaron followed with his first home run of the game.

In the fourth inning after the Cardinals had tied the score on Bob Skinner's two-run homer, Bolling doubled and moved to third on a throwing error.

Woodward popped to Bill White while trying to squeeze Bolling home and Bolling was out before he could retreat to third.

Joe Torre came close to connecting in the same inning but Curt Flood made a beautiful leaping catch of his line drive

Superior '9' Wins State Legion Title

Jeff Crisp Shuts Door on Beloit With Tying Run on Third In Ninth

BY MIKE WALTER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Tournament most valuable player Jeff Crisp pitched Superior to the state American Legion baseball championship at Goodland Field Wednesday night, scattering 10 hits to polish off Beloit, 4-3.

Crisp, who won the opener against Marinette, also picked up a 4-3 win in relief against Beloit Tuesday to account for three of his team's four tourney victories.

Crisp weakened only in the sixth inning, when Beloit pushed across all its runs, and in the ninth—almost—when Beloit had the tying run on third with one out but couldn't get him home.

Superior also scored its runs in one inning, putting together four singles in the third for four markers.

The run that turned out to be the winning one, however, came on a double steal when, with Superior out in front 3-0, Tom McCauley dived across the plate after Fran Poquette had drawn a throw on his 2-out steal of second.

Gary Arseneau opened the third for Superior by drawing a walk and advanced on Crisp's first of two perfect sacrifices. Pat Longie followed with a bloop single to left, but Arseneau had to hold at second when it appeared the ball might be caught.

It was approved Tuesday by the House Interstate Commerce Committee.

The bill was introduced last May following the controversial one-round knockout of Sonny Liston by heavyweight champion Cassius Clay in Lewiston, Maine.

If enacted by the Congress, the measure would establish a three-man Federal Boxing Commission appointed by the President with authority to license practically everyone involved in a fight.

New University Committee to Confer Tuesday

Green Bay Parlay Set With Mayors, State Legislators

Post-Crescent News Service
GREEN BAY — Northeastern Wisconsin state legislators, mayors, civic leaders and members of the new Green Bay-Brown County education committee have been invited to a banquet-meeting of the committee to "offer assistance" to state agencies in selecting a site for the proposed four-year university.

The gathering will be held at the Beaumont Inn Tuesday beginning at 6:30 p.m.

In a letter to members, Rudy Small, chairman of the new committee, said the purpose of the meeting is to "offer congratulations" to area legislators for their assistance in the passage of a bill to create a university here, and "offer assistance" in selection of a site.

New Sites
Both Green Bay and Outagamie County have bid for the site of the new school. The City of Green Bay has offered 110 acres of land for the site while the Outagamie County board passed a resolution guaranteeing donation of land selected in that county. Last year Outagamie offered 400 acres of the county farm free.

In addition, the Green Bay Chamber of Commerce has asked Mayor Donald Tillemann and County Board Chairman Myron Lott to appoint three members to a proposed city-county-citizens committee and to donate $1,000 each for its support.

In his letter to members, Small also stated: "We will again confirm our resolution that regardless of the area selected for the institution we will work together to get the passage of the financial bill in the 1967 session of the legislature at which time the appropriation for construction of the buildings will be asked."

The new committee, and Small in particular, was mainly responsible for there being no open fight between communities when the bill to create the university and appropriate funds for land purchase came before the legislature this spring.

The legislature and Gov. Warren Knowles since have approved a $400,000 appropriation for planning schools here and in Southeastern Wisconsin.

Seek Crowd For Visit By Kennedy

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Backers of Lt. Gov. Patrick J. Lucey are hoping to recruit a huge well-known crowd for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., at his airport arrival Sunday to speak at a testimonial dinner for his fellow Democrat.

The $50 a plate dinner is viewed widely as a fund-raising kickoff for Lucey's anticipated candidacy for the 1966 Democratic nomination for governor.

Lucey aides said Tuesday of fairs throughout Milwaukee, Racine, Kenosha and Waukesha counties had been invited to form a reception committee at the airport. Letters and a telephone campaign are also being employed to invite Milwaukee-area Democrats to Gen. Mitchell Field to greet the former attorney general.

Dean Lewis and Maurice Slack are in charge of ticket sales in Outagamie County.

Lebanese Freighter, U. S. Submarine Collide In South China Sea

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has confirmed that the U.S. submarine Medregal was in collision with a Lebanese freighter.

The Defense Department denied, however, a Chinese Communist radio statement that the collision occurred in Red Chinese territorial waters. The incident July 13 took place in international waters of the South China Sea, the department said, and resulted in some damage to the Medregal, but no personnel casualties.

Uses Improved Engines More Persons Over 72 to Receive Social Security Aid

CINCINNATI, Ohio — The XB-47, a serpent-like 2,000 mile per hour bomber now designated for over 72 who did not previously get benefits, said Donnicks, a spokesman for the Social Security Administration, is having enough social security credit to get benefits may be paid in some cases to a worker (and his wife) if he has three quarters of coverage. The exact number of quarters of coverage needed depends on the age of the worker, Donnicks said.

The national electronics firm, which developed the engines in Appleton, announced this week that they provide nearly twice the thrust of previous jet engines, yet weigh only slightly more than the old ones.

A man 76 or more or a woman 73 or more in 1965 needs may also get payment under the new provision. However, the number of credits needed depends on both the widow's age and a man 74 or a woman 71 in and the year in which the worker died or was 65, which coverage (to qualify for benefits ever is earlier, Donnicks continued. Anyone younger than 65 needs six or more quarters of coverage. Workers and widows of deceased workers who are eligible under this new section of the law will get $35 a month, while wives of workers who qualify will get $17.50 a month, Donnicks said.

Anyone who has a question about the new provision, or any part of the social security law, is invited to write, phone or come into the Appleton office, 401 South Elm St.

Outlook Good For Cabinet Job Addition

Sponsors Hopeful House, Senate Will Settle Differences

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sponsors of the bill creating a Cabinet Department of Housing and Urban Development predicted today the differences between the House and Senate versions will be settled quickly.

The Senate passed the high-priority administration measure Wednesday 57 to 33 and sent it back to the House which had cleared it 217 to 184 June 16.

Voting for it were 47 Democrats and 10 Republican senators. Opposed were 14 Democrats, including 12 Southerners, and 19 Republicans.

Hailing the Senate action, President Johnson said in a statement, "We will make sure that every family in America has access to a home of dignity and a neighborhood of pride." He said he was delighted with what he called the strong bipartisan support in the Senate for the new department.

Low-Key Debate
Two days of low-key Senate debate on the bill came as an anticlimax after 10 years of congressional dispute over establishing a Cabinet department to deal with problems of cities.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen enlivened the debate at the end, however, with a speech explaining he was voting no in the hope of slowing "the growth of gargantuan government."

Federal Water Crisis Experts Begin Activity

Laying Out Plan For Systematic Solution of Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal water crisis team heads into the drought-stricken Northeast today to begin laying out a systematic program for solving an acute water shortage.

Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall and Lt. Gen. W. F. Cassidy, chief of the Army Engineers, head the team which has meetings scheduled at Philadelphia (1:30 p.m. EDT) and Camden, N.J., (4 p.m.) today and at Newark, N.J., (9 a.m.) and New York City (2 p.m.) Friday.

Follow-up teams of about a half dozen men each will be set up in each city to continue working with state and local officials on drought problems.

This was the machinery ordered Wednesday by President Johnson during a White House conference of governors, mayors, members of Congress and other officials from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware called to discuss the four years of drought.

'Time for Action'
"This is a time for action — federal, state and local, public and private," Johnson said.

He announced measures to mobilize federal aid for longer range projects including a $4-million water resources planning survey for the entire Northeast from Maine to Virginia and speedups in reservoir projects in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Johnson also signed a bill authorizing a $185-million speedup in the program to convert salt and brackish water to fresh water.

Udall and Cassidy met for more than an hour following the White House meeting with dozens of state and local officials from the drought area to set up the machinery for implementing the President's plan.

Challenge of New Voting Law Filed

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — An attack on the constitutionality of the new federal voting rights law has been filed in federal court and the state's attorney general hints there may be a second test suit.

Gov. John J. McKeithen says he thinks the suit challenging the law — designed primarily to open registration rolls in the Deep South to Negroes — has a good chance.

But McKeithen said Chief Justice Earl Warren has "obviously passed on its constitutionality."

Orleans Parish voter registrar A. P. Gallinhouse filed the test suit in U.S. District Court here Wednesday. He asked for an immediate injunction halting enforcement of the law, which President Johnson signed last Friday.

Warns Asian Communists

Singapore Makes New Peace Offer

SINGAPORE (AP) — Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew made a peace overture to Indonesia today but at the same time warned Asian Communists not to make trouble for his newly independent nation.

Lee said he was willing to meet Indonesian President Sukarno as soon as Indonesia recognizes Singapore as an independent state.

Sukarno has been waging a guerrilla and sabotage campaign against the Federation of Malaysia from which Singapore separated Monday.

Lee said he considered it highly significant that the Indonesian government omitted any mention of Singapore from a statement this week that its campaign to "crush Malaysia" would continue.

"Crush Malaysia"
"I noticed Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio said crush Malaysia — not Singapore," Lee told a news conference. "I do not believe the omission was accidental. I think Singapore and Indonesia should be able to live together."

"I will meet President Sukarno anywhere," Lee said. "I will go to the ends of the earth to bring peace to Southeast Asia. But if we are to trade and be friendly with Indonesia, President Sukarno must first recognize that I have a voice of my own."

In his warning to the Communists, he said, "I am giving them fair warning. Don't try anything here. If the Communists resort to inciting riots and bloodshed here, they must be prepared for the consequences."

Lee said it was "absolutely necessary" that the Communists not be given a chance to take over the 214-square mile island state.

Lee hinted he believed a new government will soon gain control.

Quiet Restored After 8 Hours

Over 100 Policemen Quell Rioting in Negro Suburb

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Stones, bottles and bricks battered squads of helmeted policemen as they charged into 1,500 rioters, mostly teen-agers, in a Negro suburb Wednesday night and today.

More than 100 officers were dispatched to the scene, a community named Watts. Deputy Police Chief Roger E. Murdock said about 10 officers and many Negroes were injured by flying objects. Some required hospital treatment. Thirty-two rioters were arrested.

With quiet restored after about eight hours of fighting, frightened residents huddled in their homes, peeking through curtained windows at streets littered with shattered glass, rocks and other debris. By-standers had been attacked, auto windows smashed, and some stores looted.

Teen-Age Problem
"I don't know how we are going to live here," said one of them, Mrs. M. J. Ellis. "It was terrible. Somebody needs to do something with these teen-agers. Their parents can't do anything. The police can't do anything."

"I was scared to go into my house," said Mrs. Ellis, a missionary. "I came home from church and there were hundreds of teen-agers in the street. It was pitiful. Glass was all over the street. Those teen-agers threw rocks at everybody driving through the area."

"I saw a rock crashing through a white man's car. My husband and I prayed all night. I was scared. My knees were wiggling."

"I'm praying that God protect these policemen. I'm asking God to help the police fight their battle."

A Negro youth waiting at a nearby police station for his parents to pick him up said he saw a boy hit a car with a rock. The auto's occupants got out and chased the boy.

Phil LaFollette Seriously Ill in Madison Hospital

MADISON (AP) — Former Gov. Phillip F. LaFollette has been seriously ill in a Madison hospital since Aug. 3, it was disclosed Wednesday night.

The nature of the illness of the former three-term chief executive has not been disclosed, but his law partner, Gordon Sinykin, said LaFollette was taken to Madison General Hospital after complaining of severe pains in his chest and side.

LaFollette is the uncle of Atty. Gen. Bronson LaFollette. His father was Sen. Robert M. (Fighting Bob) LaFollette Sr., and his brother, the late Robert M. LaFollette Jr., also served in the Senate.

Running on the Republican ticket, LaFollette was swept into the office of governor in 1930 by a huge majority after defeating Gov. Walter J. Kohler

He did not elaborate, but he added, "The first targets were white's cars, but then anyone in a car became a target."

70-Day-Old Viet Cong Attack Ended

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. and Vietnamese troops lifted the 70-day-old siege of Duc Co today.

Powerful units launched operations to wipe Viet Cong from the jungles flanking 40 miles of highway on which that special forces camp is near the Cambodian frontier.

In the air war, a U.S. Navy A4 Skyhawk was reported shot down by a surface to air missile about 50 miles south-southwest of Hanoi.

A military spokesman said the downed craft was one in a formation of four of the single seat lightweight jet bombers. The pilot was presumed killed.

From Mobile Unit
The spokesman said the area was outside the range of known antiaircraft missile sites in North Viet Nam. He would not elaborate, but it was believed this indicated the missile was fired from a mobile unit.

U.S. troops of the 173rd Airborne Brigade and the 2nd Brigade of the 1st Infantry Division backed up government battalions of a relief column that reached Duc Co Wednesday night.

Exile Jailed Alone for His Protection

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A Cuban exile charged with piracy of the coastal freighter Seven Seas and the murder of five fellow seamen has been placed in a cell alone "for his own protection."

At no time will Roberto Ramirez, 35, be allowed to mingle with other prisoners, said Sgt. Harold Adams of the county jail, "because of the circumstances of the case."

Ramirez, a muscular, dark-skinned Cuban national, was taken to the 8x10, windowless cell Wednesday night after the federal government decided it had jurisdiction over the slayings aboard the Seven Seas.

A U.S. commissioner signed the warrant and a hearing was set for today.

Argument Over Castro
The violence aboard the Seven Seas started, Ramirez reportedly told federal authorities, when the captain and the crew threatened to report him for favoring Cuban dictator Fidel Castro.

The captain was shot to death on the bridge and thrown overboard. Three crewmen were shot in their sleep, and a fourth was killed and thrown into the Atlantic Ocean off the Florida Keys.

The only crewman to survive was Burgwise Elwin, 17, who cowered in a chainlocker after he saw one shooting. He was rescued when the Coast Guard spotted the freighter drifting up the Gulf Stream Sunday afternoon.

A sixth crewman, the cook, apparently drowned when he jumped overboard to escape Ramirez.

Widow, Sons at Ceremony for Deceased Hero

'Yet, You're Still Before My Eyes'

NEW YORK (AP) — Before he died in Viet Nam Capt. Christopher J. O'Sullivan wrote his two sons that "though we are thousands of miles apart, yet you are still before my eyes."

To his wife, Eleanor, he wrote, "I promised you that I would be overly cautious now that I am rotating so soon. I cannot keep that promise this time. By the time you receive this letter it will be over one way or the other."

In memory of a father and husband who gave his life to save a friend two sons saluted and a widow clasped

her hand to her heart Wednesday.

They were guests at a parade and ceremony on Governor's Island attended by the captain's parents, Francis Cardinal Spellman and Mrs. Stephen E. Smith, sister of the late President John F. Kennedy.

High Decoration
Mrs. O'Sullivan accepted this nation's second highest military decoration, the Distinguished Service Cross, for her husband Michael, 4, and Stephen, 3, were at her side.

Five other decorations were presented posthumously to Capt. O'Sullivan. His home was in Astoria, Queens.

Capt. O'Sullivan was killed in an ambush in Viet Nam May 30 as he led a party of Rangers in an attempt to rescue Lt. Donald Robinson of Tacoma, Wash. Seventy-five Vietnamese Rangers also died the first place.

McNamara Control Of Congress Failing

Legislators Ignore His Suggestions

By HARRY KELLY
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress' long if not ardent honeymoon with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara appears finally over.

His old mastery was missing as Congress put its foot down twice Wednesday — going its own way on a military pay bill and turning a deaf ear to his strong arguments for a merger of the Army reserves.

The Reserve plan, a particularly pet project, was killed at least for this year by a House Armed Services subcommittee headed by Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La.

Despite McNamara's arguments to the contrary, the subcommittee said the proposed merger would result in "an immediate and serious loss in combat readiness" and is "not in our national interest."

Military Pay
On the other side of Capitol Hill, the Senate was giving an 89-0 approval of a $1-billion military pay bill, much the same as already passed by the House, but more than twice as much as McNamara wanted. The House appeared likely to give quick approval to the Senate version.

A Defense Department statement, not quoting McNamara, said Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor and Gen. Harold K. Johnson, chief of staff, both believe the subcommittee's rejection of the merger plan "will compel the Army to retain nonessential units" rather than use the manpower to build up more important forces required by war contingency plans.

Necessary Result
Moreover, the statement said "failure to go forward with the realignment will necessarily result in more men being taken out of civilian life into the armed forces."

The statement noted the sub-

Draft Boards to Get Tough On Deferments for Students

By JERRY BUCK
NEW YORK (AP) — Some Selective Service boards say they will tighten rules deferring college students from the draft in the Viet Nam crisis.

Draft boards that have been liberal in giving students deferments in the past say they are going to get tough to meet heavy draft calls beginning next month.

A sampling by The Associated Press of 20 states showed 13 planning to review the status of deferred students. At least two others in the survey are considering such action.

"If we need men to draft, one place we'll look is the college classroom," said Lt. Col. Wayne Rhodes, deputy state director of the Indiana Selective Service System.

The look to the campus came after President Johnson ordered the monthly draft jumped from 17,000 to 35,000 men by November.

Military Hopeful About Merger Bill

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Military commanders in Wisconsin evidenced restrained optimism today over action of a House subcommittee apparently killing, at least for this year, plans to merge Army reserve units into the National Guard.

None was prepared to predict just what Congress might do about future reorganization proposals. But the temporary delay in the plan under which Wisconsin's famed 32nd National Guard Division would be reduced to brigade status was plainly welcome.

More outspoken was Brig. Gen. Robert P. Schulz, commander of the 84th Army Reserve Division.

Split Red Arrow
"This is just what we've been fighting for for the last eight or nine months," he said. The Defense Department reorganization proposal on which an Armed Services Subcommittee declined to act would have committee's expressed willingness to consider future reorganizations and said the department "is prepared to continue discussions immediately."

McNamara is said still to have hopes of reviving the plan, or one similar to it, next year.

The proposal that was turned down was to streamline the Reserves by cutting out low priority units and consolidating the high priority ones within the National Guard. When McNamara announced the plan Dec. 12 he expressed belief he needed no other congressional authority than a simple change in the appropriations bill.

10-Day Delay Expected on Cause of Blast

Check Continues of Missile Silo That Exploded Killing 53

SEARCY, Ark. (AP) — The Air Force says it will probably be at least 10 days before it's known what caused an explosion and fire in a Titan II missile complex, killing 53 civilians.

A 30-man investigation team continued today its inspection of the blackened launch tube of America's mightiest ballistic missile — scene of the worst tragedy in the history of America's space and missile systems.

Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert and an Arkansas congressional delegation went into the underground complex Wednesday, but returned to Washington without revealing any findings.

Zuckert said it will probably be 10 days to two weeks before "we have the answers to the questions now being asked."

He toured the site with Sens. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., and John L. McClellan, D-Ark., Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., and Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas.

Only two of the 55 workmen who were modifying the silo's physical plant survived Monday's explosion and fire.

Administration Proposals Get Nod

Senate Zips Through Legislation, Appointments at Record Speed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like unanimous vote of the 89 senators present a $1-billion pay increase for 4 million service personnel. This was not, however, load of Johnson administration legislation and appointment confirmations seldom matched in modern times.

Working with a blinding speed foreign to its nature, the Senate:

$80 Million Bill Passed

Pay Hike for Military Could Start in Month

WASHINGTON (AP) — The key man in the House is American military personnel Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., will get a total monthly pay increase of about $80 million as House agrees to set aside a pay measure it passed and accept a Senate-passed bill.

The Senate approved its measure Wednesday. Like the House bill, the $1-billion Senate measure contains more than twice as much as President Johnson asked. But sponsors expect the President to sign it.

The raises would go to active and reserve personnel in the Army, Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Geodetic Survey and Public Health Service.

Chief Differences
Chief differences in the versions passed by the two houses were in how the pay raises should apply to commissioned warrant officers and enlisted personnel with more than two years service.

Normally, such differences are worked out by a joint Senate-House Conference Committee. But House acceptance of the Senate bill would speed up the normal process.

Johnson Expected To Abandon Fight On U.N. Peace Fee

Upholding of Soviet Vote Might Be Goldwater Policy Revision

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.N. diplomats expect the United States to announce Monday that it is abandoning attempts to take away the Soviet Union's vote in the General Assembly because it refuses to pay $62.2 million in peace-keeping assessments.

This was generally believed to be the revised U.S. policy Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg has promised to unveil before the assembly's 33-nation committee on peacekeeping operations. Some Republican members of the U.S. Congress are certain to object.

Goldberg comes to New York today to confer with U.N. delegates on possible ways to solve the financial crisis caused by the refusal of the Soviet Union, France and 11 other nations to pay their peacekeeping dues.

The new U.S. chief delegate told newsmen in Washington that President Johnson probably will decide by Monday what the U.S. policy will be on the U.N. dues issue.

He said the President's decision will show whether the Johnson administration intends to drop its demand that the General Assembly apply Article 19 of the U.N. Charter. This calls for suspension of the assembly vote of countries two years in arrears.

Goldberg said he had been sounding out members of Congress on the U.N. question. After conferring with delegates in New York, he and Secretary of State Dean Rusk will work up a recommendation for Johnson this weekend.

Lacked Support
Even before the death of Goldberg's predecessor, Adlai E. Stevenson, U.S. officials conceded privately that the idea of a showdown on Article 19 was dead — primarily because the United States did not have enough support in the assembly to win such a contest.

A U.S. announcement that Article 19 would not be invoked abroad last year — more than would leave the next move up the line of the United States, the Soviet Union has promised that it will make a substantial volun-

lary contribution to a U.N. sol-venency fund once assembly procedures have been normalized.

During the previous session the United States insisted that the Soviet pledge be made first and then voting could be resumed — provided the pledge was large enough.

Byrnes Hits Compensation Revisions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John W. Byrnes, R - Wis., says increased benefits under the unemployment insurance system should be reserved for times of economic recession.

The Green Bay Republican challenged testimony Wednesday before the House Ways and Means Committee by Undersecretary of Labor Joseph W. Barr in support of administration proposals to revise the system.

Barr said the proposed increased benefits, extended coverage and new federal program of payments for the long term unemployed would help stabilize the economy in the event of a downturn. But he admitted under questioning by Byrnes that in times of good economic health, unemployment insurance had little or no impact as an economic stabilizer.

"So why extend these benefits automatically?" asked Byrnes.

"Why not limit them to the times when you need them?"

Byrnes, ranking GOP member of the committee, is joint sponsor with committee chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of a bill that would tie increased unemployment benefits to the economy, to be used only when business slumps.

American Tourists

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 2.2 million Americans went abroad last year — more than twice the number of visitors to the United States, reports the National Industrial Conference Board.

troops in Malaysia and as a result "Singapore and Malaysia will come together in the end — and the end is not so very far away."

The governments of Singapore and Malaysia sought to establish working links

Singapore's Finance Minister Lim Kim San pledged to "find ways and means" to facilitate trade between the newly independent island state and Malaysia

"Far from trying to cut economic ties, we want to bring the two territories closer together," Lim said

The two governments arranged to let Singapore citizens continue to use Malaysian travel documents for the time being. Malaysia agreed to handle Singapore's consular services abroad until the new country sets up its own offices.

Fresh Assurance

Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew gave fresh assurances that the Malay minority on his predominantly Chinese island would continue to receive equal treatment and that Malay would remain the national language. There are 250,000 Malays in Singapore and about 1.2 million Chinese.

Lee had repeatedly charged the Malay-dominated government of Malaysian Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman was blocking non-Malays from political equality in the federation. This was the issue over which Singapore and the federation split Monday.

In a statement today, Rahman charged Lee with "acrimony" and "consistent attacks" that would have led to racial strife and bloodshed. He said he regarded the separation of Singapore as the only alternative to "repressive action" against Lee.

Lee charged earlier that Rahman had forced the separation on him and that Malay extremists were responsible.

Lee said Wednesday Britain should retain her military bases in Singapore to help defend both the island and Malaysia against Indonesia.

Dirksen Plans New Amendment On Redistricting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, vowing "the fight has just begun," has introduced a new version of his defeated constitutional amendment on reapportionment of state legislatures.

Like the proposal which fell seven votes short of a two-thirds majority last week, the new amendment by the Illinois senator would reject the Supreme Court ruling that both houses of state legislatures be apportioned according to population only.

Under the proposal, one house could have seats allocated "on the basis of population, geography and political subdivisions (such as counties) in order to insure effective representation in the state's legislature of the various groups and interests making up the electorate."

Changes over the earlier proposal include a provision requiring reapportionment of legislatures every 10 years on the basis of a census, and inclusion of the phrase "to insure effective representation."

NEW LONDON — Robert W. Johnson, 51, partner in the Johnson Brothers Pure Oil distributorship, died at 12:15 a.m. today.

He was a member of the Wisconsin Petroleum Association, New London Chamber of Commerce and a former member of the New London Rotary Club.

He is survived by his widow, two sons, two brothers and a sister. Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Emmanuel Lutheran Church with burial in the Floral Hill Cemetery.

to arrest persons "for any violation they see."

Residents of the suburban Watts neighborhood told police that many of the rioters were breaking store and apartment windows and some looting was reported.

Two Pound Rock

Officers at the 77th Precinct Station displayed a two-pound chunk of rock that smashed through a window of a car driven by Deputy City Attorney Roland Ringwall. Several windows were broken in Ringwall's car, but he was not injured.

Murdock said the riot started at 7 p.m. when a California Highway Patrol officer arrested a Negro on suspicion of drunken driving. He said a crowd gathered as the suspect's mother began arguing with officers and then erupted in violence when she was arrested.

Rioting grew in intensity throughout the evening as Negroes — mostly teen-agers — pelleted motorists and police with rocks, bottles and bricks.

Police said at least 50 vehicles were damaged, including a bus that had nearly all of its windows broken.

Helmeted police armed with nightsticks made several charges into the crowd and briefly dispersed the rioters, who re-formed behind barricades which were quickly erected.

Death of Student At Beloit Raises Road Toll to 566

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS A woman student at Beloit College was killed Wednesday night when a car left the road and struck a tree. Her death raised Wisconsin's 1965 highway toll to 566 compared with 649 on this date a year ago.

Kathryn E. Schmidtke, 20, of Columbia, Mo., a junior at Beloit College, was pronounced dead on arrival at a Beloit hospital Wednesday night after the car in which she was riding missed a curve, traveled through a pasture and struck a tree. She died of a skull fracture. The accident occurred about 8:30 p.m. on Highway 81 15 miles west of Beloit.

Two other Beloit students were injured in the crash, but both were reported in satisfactory condition. They were the driver, Carol L. Kalata, 20, of Riverdale, Ill., and Lauri Ann Tennant, 20, of New Canaan, Conn.

Hoover Memory To be Honored In White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The five living Republicans who have run for president, from Alf Landon to Barry Goldwater, were invited to the White House today to honor the memory of Herbert Hoover and watch Henry Cabot Lodge take the oath as ambassador to South Viet Nam.

President Johnson, who extended the invitations, made no effort to link the two ceremonies.

The five GOP standard bearers — Landon, Thomas E. Dewey, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Richard M. Nixon and Goldwater — were asked to watch Johnson sign legislation creating the Herbert Hoover national historical site at West Branch, Iowa, where the former GOP chief executive was born in 1874 and, just last October, was buried.

The 200-acre site embraces the two-room dwelling where Hoover was born, the plot where he was buried and the library containing his presidential papers.

quarters in the central highlands, as the relief column neared its goal, 30 miles from Pleiku.

A patrol of U.S. paratroopers made a brief contact with guerrillas today at the Montagnard tribal village of Plei Ya ho. Shots were exchanged, but when the paratroopers charged in they found only frightened villagers.

Guarding Airport

The 1st Division infantrymen guarded Pleiku's airport.

Speaking of the downing of the Skyhawk, the spokesman said the three other planes of the flight returned safely and reported it was hit by a missile from the ground.

He added that no enemy aircraft were sighted in the area and no other groundfire was reported except that which hit the plane. The weather was reported clear.

No parachute was seen, the spokesman said, and the missing pilot was presumed killed. It was the second reported downing of an American plane over North Viet Nam by an anti-aircraft missile. A U.S. Air Force F4C Phantom jet was shot down about 40 miles west of Hanoi on July 25, and the Pentagon attributed this to a surface to air missile.

Missile Sites Destroyed

Two days later the Pentagon announced that Air Force jets had bombed the missile site from which the Phantom had been downed as well as another site. It said one site was destroyed, the other damaged and three of the attacking planes were shot down by conventional ground fire.

U.S. reconnaissance planes have located five other missile sites encircling Hanoi, but military spokesmen have raised the possibility that North Viet Nam also has mobile launching units.

The missile launchers are assumed to have been installed by Soviet technicians and may be manned by Soviet personnel.

In the ground war, U.S. and Vietnamese forces in the central highlands mobilized for big operations against the Viet Cong camp, they reported.

around the embattled special forces camp at Duc Co.

There was no indication whether the Viet Cong would stay and fight or follow their usual tactic of melting away in the face of a formidable enemy.

U.S. troops of the 173rd Airborne Brigade and the 2nd Brigade of the 1st Infantry Division were flown to Pleiku Tuesday and Wednesday to back up a Vietnamese relief column which reached Duc Co Wednesday night. The camp 30 miles southwest of Pleiku had been under siege since June 3.

The chief mission of the Americans was to be a reserve force. But U.S. authorities made plain they would be ordered into action if the Viet Cong launched a major counterattack.

A military spokesman said there had been no reports of further contact with the communists since around noon, when U.S. paratroopers drew small arms and machine-gun fire from a village 15 miles east of Duc Co. There were no casualties, he said, and a patrol entered the village and found it deserted.

At about the same time, U.S. informants said, the Viet Cong made a new mortar attack on the Duc Co camp. Some 30 rounds of 60mm fire landed about 300 yards short of the camp, they reported.

Potential Workers Seek Antipoverty Answers

BY SYLVIA PORTER

"How do I volunteer to work in the antipoverty program?" "What kinds of volunteer jobs are available and who is most needed?" "What is required of me, if I volunteer?" "Is this work really important or is it just more 'busy work'?"

Porter

Since my recent column reporting the development of a new breed of volunteers in our country, you've sent me a surprisingly large number of letters asking these questions. So here goes.

Q: Who is needed?
A: Professionals of all kinds are at the top of the most wanted lists: doctors and nurses millions of children simply don't have them. The crying need is for local and federal health programs: lawyers to give legal aid to the poor; teachers for tutoring and other educational programs; artists and musicians to work with pre-school

Weather May Topple Old Crop Records

Total Volume Is 4 Per Cent Above Record of 1963

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many crop production records will fall this year if the weather is favorable this month and next. The Agriculture Department's August report on crop progress forecasts the total crop volume at 4 per cent above the record set in 1963. It would be 16 per cent larger than the 1957-58 average and 6 per cent larger than last year.

Record production is indicated for corn and livestock feed grains, soybeans, rice and hay. The feed grain harvest could increase grain surpluses, despite the fact that growers are set to hold down planting. A smaller 1964 grain crop reduced surplus.

Potato production was forecast at a level 18 per cent above last year's. Five per cent more fresh vegetables were forecast for the remainder of the summer than were produced a year ago.

The Agriculture Department also reported the farm working force in late July was the smallest for that period in more than half a century.

Our economy can run into incalculable tens of billions of dollars a year. (Copyright 1963)

Chief Executive 'Under the Gun'

Need for 4-Year Term for Governor Stressed by State Justice Fairchild

The need of a four-year term commendations have been made certain limit — the limit to be a the populace varies. Only Milwaukee for Wisconsin's governorship to the legislature.

In high priority on the commission's list of "necessaries" suggested by the commission, any leeway from the constitutional "under the gun for re-election is the drive to have the governor and lieutenant-governor run on the same ticket, as the president and vice president do nationally. A bill to this effect has passed the 1965 Legislature and is awaiting passage by the 1967 body before it can be submitted to the people for a referendum.

Another recommendation made by the commission is formation of a three-member non-partisan reapportionment commission which would initiate Justice Fairchild, who was elected to the state's highest Legislature does not act swiftly enough after the federal census Governor's Commission of Constitutional Revision, a citizen's group which studies and makes recommendations to the state Legislature on constitutional changes which it feels are needed.

There are several areas. Justice Fairchild's commission feels, that are especially needy of revision, in addition to the governor's tenure. Several re-percentage of the state's equal-waukee County, with its primary valuation — also was suggested by the commission. The debt would be used for building projects exclusive of highways. An additional debt based on a percentage of gasoline taxes would go toward highway construction.

The debt limit, recommended by the commission to be between 1 and 2 per cent — which would allow a maximum debt of $360 million for buildings and $130 million for highways — is presently before the Legislature at the 2½ per cent level. Justice Fairchild said, this certainly would provide for a larger amount of state building projects, but also would provide for a higher public debt, he added.

Reorganization of county government is an area which and difficult to achieve. Justice Fairchild feels is in particular need of constitutional revision.

The present state constitution provides for "almost absolute uniformity" among the state's county governments, while the weakness, as, in partisan politics, one legislature often will disagree with another, and leaving the calling of the convention to the discretion of a body rival to the earlier one usually will achieve no coinciding result, Justice Fairchild said.

Selection of Delegate

The third step is the actual selection of delegates for the convention, delegates who — hopefully, if the original purpose of the convention is to be achieved — will agree with the policies of the two legislatures that called them.

Fourth is the drafting of the document, which must be done without deference to special-interest groups. Finally, submission to the people for a referendum will ratify it and the constitution has been amended.

The other means is not a complicated, but just as time-consuming. It involves passage of each of two succeeding referendums. A problem here is that often the amendment has received so little publicity that most voters are unfamiliar with it and unable to vote sensibly on it.

Steps toward gaining a constitutional convention are lengthy. First, a Justice Fairchild's commission recommendation to change this procedure would require a two-third vote by the legislature and referendum. Already, there is a rather than majority vote by two succeeding legislatures and the referendum.

1965 Grand Chute Assessed Value Up Over $2.3 Million

Increase to Provide $75,000 in Revenue Without Tax Rate Hike

Real and personal property assessment in the Town of Grand Chute has increased by more than $2.3 million dollars over last year, according to John Stevens, town assessor.

The new figure is $19,482,838, compared with $17,114,018 last year.

It will provide about $75,000 in additional tax revenue for the town without raising the tax rate. Last year's tax rate was $33.50 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

Included in the increase of total property are real estate, $16,572,245, up from $14,744,245, and personal property, $2,909,993, up from $2,369,773.

Real estate improvements provided the biggest boost for the new total, with $12,565,500 being assessed this year, compared with $11,108,100 last year. Land value was assessed at $4,007,345, compared to last year's $3,636,145.

Education Payments

The added money received from taxes will help pay for the higher payments to the City of Appleton for education. A total of $17,000 will be necessary this year, compared to about $5,000 last year, Stevens said.

The increase results from the state's having allowed Appleton to attach Grand Chute to the city for vocational school purposes, whereas previously it had only been for high school purposes. Because of the attachment, however, Appleton has about $40 million more in equalized valuation on which to borrow for school construction.

Real estate assessments in Grand Chute, with the increase over last year given in parentheses, are:

Residential—land, $1,472,810 ($14,800); improvements, $7,489,600 ($574,900); total, $8,962,410 ($629,700). Mercantile—land, $619,550 ($133,200); improvements, $2,239,150 ($300,450); total, $2,858,700 ($433,650). Manufacturing—land, $196,600 ($48,300); improvements, $1,556,500 ($502,500); total, $1,753,100 ($550,800).

Agricultural Land

Agricultural—land $1,670,950 ($145,050); improvements, $2,280,250 ($273,550); total, $2,951,200 ($218,600). Swamps and waste—land, $8,265 (same as last year, no improvements). Forest land—$39,170 (same as last year, no improvements). Personal property assessment—Vernon Martin retired last fall.

equal to those charged resident students on the Madison campus, which will rise to $300 with the fall semester.

Heavier Enrollments

Officials are not certain what the effect upon enrollments will be, but they are reasonably sure if there is any reaction from students and parents, it will be toward heavier enrollments of freshmen and sophomores at the centers.

Adolfson and his staff are preparing for the opening of four new freshman-sophomore centers in Waukesha and Janesville for the fall of 1966, and in Baraboo and West Bend in the fall of 1968. Contracts for the construction of buildings in Janesville and Waukesha have been let.

1965 State Fair Will Open Friday

Judging is most often done in the morning. The grandstand shows with the stars normally begin at 2:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. Auto races replace the grandstand show on Saturdays and Sundays. The afternoons are filled with music and contest events.

A complete schedule of events and a map of the fairgrounds will be handed to everyone at the entry gate. For the avid fairgoer or the one who wants to see a specific event, the best advice is to attend early and get the schedule for succeeding days.

Each of the 10 days has a name that describes the events of the day. Opening day, Aug. 14, is West Allis Day, honoring the City of West Allis. Monday, Aug. 16 is Children's Day; Wednesday, Aug. 18, Women's Day; Friday, Aug. 20, Youth Day, and Saturday, Aug. 21, Livestock and Dairy Day.

Adequate Parking

Adequate parking is available on the fairgrounds. The grounds are accessible from the East-West Expressway via the S. 84th Street entrance. The grounds extend from W. Greenfield Avenue on the south to W. Schlenger Avenue on the north and from S. 77th Street on the east to S. 84th Street on the west. There are entrances on the south, west and north.

These entrances will lead to a gay conglomeration, all of the elements of Wisconsin packed together for the fun of it.

committee, may revoke the license for six months.

Board members authorized the county highway department's purchase of a rubber tired roller for $6,400.

Board Chairman L. H. Hui-bregtse suggested that board members consider an appropriation in September to allow Civil Defense Director Roland E. Miller to hire an assistant.

Auxiliary Police

Miller said the county's greatest needs are in auxiliary police and radiological monitoring personnel.

Several town chairman said that the placement of billboards in agricultural zoned areas was presenting a problem. Miller said this was against the county zoning ordinance and asked that written reports of the violations be submitted to his office.

Supv. George Schwalbach, Town of Harrison, education committee chairman, reported an inventory of the former county superintendent's office was complete. The county superintendent was replaced by the Cooperative Educational Service Agencies on July 1. Calumet County's board had given Superintendent F. J. Planagan, 30 days after this time to close out his office.

Supervisors authorized the education and public grounds committees to check ownership of the items and appraise them before making disposition to the school districts under the county superintendent's jurisdiction.

LBJ Faces Dilemma on United Nations Dues

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is on the spot.

By Monday he must find a solution that will keep Republican critics quiet, save face for the United States, and get the United Nations, Russia and the United Nations off the hook.

This is the hook: The Soviet Union, France, Belgium, South Africa, Yemen and eight Communist countries owe $108 million.

Russia's share is $62.2 million. Russia refuses to pay, arguing Johnson's problem is how to get out of this. Russia and the that the way the U.N. decision it gracefully. This is the back-Soviet Bloc.

In due time the assembly in the Middle East and the Congo. Originally the U.N. Security 1956 voted to send a peace-

So it proposed that the Gen- eral Assembly, where all 114 member nations can vote, but the United States doesn't want Russia to get involved in the Viet-to take action against a future (nameless) war, seems certain. There were live dis-keeping force into the Middle East and another into the Congo in 1960. Russia opposed both actions. France opposed the mission to the Congo. But the cost of keeping the peace runs into millions. France, Russia and the other 11 objecting nations didn't pay their assessments for this cost. France took the position the assembly didn't have the power to do what it did, Russia argued. That was the American position under Johnson last year. Nevertheless, the United States didn't force an all-or-nothing showdown and this year its position seemed to soften. Some Republicans in Congress began to attack the Johnson administration for what they called backdown. Yet, in this case someone has to yield or the United Nations may go into smoke. This is why it seems inevitable Johnson by Monday will have to work out some formula with which Russia can agree but still do it adroitly enough to keep critics off his neck and save some face for the United States. The 33-nation U.N. committee meets Monday.

Equality Under Arrest and Trial

It is rather significant that the questions in which most senators querying United States Supreme Court appointee Abe Fortas seemed most interested dealt with his opinions concerning various arrest and trial procedures. This is a current source of controversy among law enforcement officials, lawyers and judges.

In discussing a proposed model code of the American Law Institute, Judge David Bazelon of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia complained that regulations outlined governing arrest and interrogation, especially of the "dragnet" type and allowing long periods of questioning before counsel is called, "primarily affect the poor and in particular the poor Negro citizens." Laws which permit counsel but which do not provide them free to indigents permit "those able to retain counsel to protect their rights effectively while refusing to provide equal protection to the poor and inexperienced."

At first glance it would appear absolutely essential that all Americans be considered equal under arrest and trial procedures. The Fourteenth Amendment even states that "no state shall... deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws." But how is this to be achieved?

Obviously those who live in neighborhoods known for violence are going to be under more scrutiny by the police and certainly former criminals will be sought out in case of similar crimes. Evidence has shown that individuals have been railroaded into convictions which they most certainly would not have had they been white, wealthy and influential. The frightened, the insecure, the mentally slow may simply be easier to convince of their guilt than others. This is highly disturbing in a nation which has always taught that a man is innocent until proven guilty.

But Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach argued against Bazelon's insistence that regulations be drawn so that the poor and uninfluential have the same chance of acquittal as the rich, at least insofar as the purpose of investigation is concerned. "It would be ridiculous to state that the overriding purpose of any criminal investigation is to insure equal treatment" or to cure "all the inequities which may exist in our society as a result of social and economic and intellectual differences. . . I have never understood why the gangster should be made the model and all others raised, in the name of equality, to his level in suppressing evidence. Because we cannot solve all crimes and convict all criminals is no reason to release those guilty whom we can convict."

Katzenbach and Bazelon are approaching the issue from two different directions. Bazelon is concerned about the innocent who might be unjustly found guilty. Katzenbach is concerned with the guilty who might weasel free. Certainly regulations of arrest and trial should not be primarily used to overcome the differences which exist because of all sorts of factors. This is similar to the efforts of bussing children out of neighborhood schools in an attempt to overcome something which is basically a housing problem. And yet the problems exist. Operation Head Start is one obvious example of an effort to give youngsters an equal chance when they enter school. But to ensure equality law enforcement agencies would really have to extend more privileges to the poor and even to the criminal to try to make things balance.

There have been numerous charges and some evidence of police brutality in some rough districts of our larger cities as well as in the Deep South. Certainly these are not only to be deplored; extensive efforts to avoid them must be taken. But it is difficult to see how the prevention of crime or the bringing of the guilty to justice — one of the major deterrents to crime — can be aided by restrictions on police officials which would prevent interrogations with all rights of course pointed out and known.

Justice is not blind to color or attitude or past records. But individuals must also assume some responsibility as to what they have done with whatever they happened to be born with.

Justice Fortas avoided too much affirmation of either point of view. It all depends, he indicated, and that is just about it.

Restlessness in Korea

There are ominous sounds from South Korea that what is essentially a trumped up issue can be exploited by the minority party into an open break with President Chung Hee Park and possibly force the calling of general elections.

The issue is the "treaty of amity" with Japan, signed last June and awaiting ratification by Korea's Parliament, controlled by President Park.

Actually negotiations on a treaty which would restore full diplomatic relations between Japan and Korea began 14 years ago but were constantly interrupted by various crises in Korea's government. Last year, when it appeared that the negotiations were getting somewhere, they had to be called off because of riots and other demonstrations particularly inspired by university students. This year the government had a little tighter control and let the schools out early for summer vacation to stall off the riots. But the doors to the university can hardly be kept closed indefinitely and more violence is expected if classes reconvene in September.

Any sort of relations between Japan and Korea can be expected to have explosive repercussions. Enthusiastic friendship is about as remote as it was between Alabama and Massachusetts right after the end of the Civil War. And Koreans had much more reason for hatred of the Japanese. Japan, after sporadic control of parts of Korea, annexed the whole area in 1910 and ruled it as a colony. Rebellion was put down ruthlessly and the Koreans were treated as second rate human beings. Hatred of the Japanese became a fact of Korean life.

But even opposition party members acknowledge that the time has come for restoring diplomatic relations and improving economic exchanges. In the treaty as it has been signed, Japan is to make available to Korea some $800 millions in grants and loans over the next ten years. The treaty would also serve to help Korea economically in other ways and throw up one more block to Communist aggression. But the minority in Parliament claims the treaty is a sellout and that Korea should have demanded and received more from Japan in the way of benefits.

It is doubtful that the opposition point of view is realistic. Japan needs markets but is booming economically, something Korea is not. But if the minority is using the issue merely as a political one, it could be successful in once more stirring up an uneasy nation to toppling its government.

'No thank you, Mr. President . . . I already have one!'

British Cuts in Defense Spending Cause Concern in Washington

BY MAX FREEDMAN

The United States has a direct and painful interest in the defense reductions ordered by the Labor government of Great Britain. Those reductions have been imposed very reluctantly and only under the pressure of economic necessity. But the stark fact remains that more economies will be ordered unless the British people speedily improve their balance of payments.

Freedman

As announced by Defense Secretary Denis Healey, the present reductions, though large, are not the end of the story. They are to be followed by other reductions in a program of planned economies.

It is a most disturbing fact, for all who value Britain's place as a world power, to learn from Healey that Iraq, Egypt and Indonesia all have many modern weapons now surpassing those in the British arsenal. The United States can fight a war in Viet Nam with its left hand; but a full-scale war in Malaysia would absorb almost the total fighting strength of the British people. How long can Britain remain a nuclear power while she is oppressed by these economic problems? And who except the United States, already overextended and reluctant to assume new duties, will fill the areas of weakness if a British retreat becomes unavoidable? These are the policy questions now being weighed in the highest circles in Washington.

ONLY INTERIM CUTS

The interim program calls for a saving of six hundred million dollars by drastic economies that do not invade existing defense commitments. The next stage requires a similar saving; and a few believe this can be done without some British commitments being scrapped. Defense expenditures next year will be 280 million dollars below the first estimates of the Labor government and 320 million below the projected expenditures of the Conservative Government. The objective for 1967-70 is a reduction in defense spending from seven to six per cent of the gross national product even though that product should be steadily rising.

Faced with these estimates and projections, most observers have concluded that the cancellation of the fifth polaris submarine will be only the first of many painful economies. They also believe that the British government will have to cut down on its military expenditures in Germany. In addition, there will have to be reductions in Aden and the Persian Gulf, so essential to Britain's continued role as a world power, unless these oil-rich areas can be induced to make a greater contribution to their own defense.

What the United States now faces in Western Europe is a friendly but weakened Britain; a strong but critical France; and a powerful but impatient Germany. Already faint echoes of the British dilemma are being heard in German politics. They will rise in volume as the German election next month comes closer. Inevitably the German leaders will seek a still larger role in the Western alliance.

FRENCH RECORD BLEAK

Nor will they be put off by the argument that Germany already has too much power. West Germany can point to her excellent record in NATO, as compared with France's bleak and negative record, as proof that she has not abused her growing strength. It will be hard to deny an expanded role to West Germany suited to her present position and not to the traditional fears of German motives. Yet such an enlargement of the German position, helped along by a vulnerable Britain, will revive the old charge that Bonn is seeking a special relationship with Washington. In these difficult conditions it is fortunate that Prime Minister Wilson has established more cordial relations with Germany's political leaders than any British statesman since the end of the war.

The gravity of the national crisis is still hidden from the British people by the deceiving mists of full employment. It will not be too long before the American people in turn have to grapple with the international consequences of the British crisis.

Dr. Molner Missed Point Made in Book

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Your paper of August 2 contained an article in the "To your good health" column in which Dr. Molner answered a question asked by a reader regarding the freezing of people with eventual defrosting and resuscitation.

The Doctor's reply was, of course, brief and presented his personal opinions on the matter. This is all well and good, but I felt that the reader's question and the Doctor's answer both missed the point.

What the inquirer was asking about is a new concept, which has been developed by Professor R. C. W. Ettinger, of freezing a person immediately after death, holding at very low temperatures to prevent deterioration, and reviving the person at some date far in the future when medical science has progressed enough to cure what caused death.

Professor Ettinger's book is entitled "The Prospect of Immortality" (published by Doubleday). The Appleton Public Library has a copy, and it is very interesting to read. The professor believes it is very possible that many persons alive today will be walking this Earth in their present form three centuries or so in the future.

Anyone believing this impossible should read the book before jumping to conclusions.

Gen. Proudfit Changes His Mind

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for Aug. 12, 1865.

Gen. Proudfit authorizes the Madison Capitol to announce that he has undergone a political change, that he no longer has anything in common with the Democratic masses, that he has, like Joe Smith of olden times, received a new revelation from one of the two distinguished persons who negotiated upon a high mountain in ancient times about this world and its possessions.

The Senator yesterday adjourned to go for a high rated, eternal revenue, public banks, military communions and negro suffrage, and to oppose general and equitable taxation, civil courts, assets of babies corpus, and a white corpus for white men — the cream colored being preferable.

The General is not the first promising young man to go astray, who has been led astray captive in the devil at his will.

Verily, the last state of that man shall be worse than the first! — Alas! Poor Proudfit!

Winners of the cattle judging contest at the Outagamie 4-H Club demonstration at Seymour were Gerald Mielke, route 1, Seymour, and Arnold Tonne, route 2, Seymour. The boys were to represent the county at the Wisconsin State Fair.

Richard Van Wyk, Appleton, grand trustee of the Order of the Odd Fellows, was to take part in the golden anniversary celebration of the Odd Fellows home in Green Bay.

Fogging Does No Good If It's Humid, Rainy

Editor, Post-Crescent:

I would like to get in the fogging controversy myself and point out just how silly this program really is. In the original article in The Post-Crescent, it was pointed out that if it is rainy or misty, the man-made fog just doesn't work. Well, on the night of May 21, the misty beginning of the great fogging operation of 1965, the night couldn't have been worse. The humidity was close to 100 per cent and the air was so heavy you could cut it with a knife. Well, about 7 o'clock the fogging machine came chugging down the street followed by about twenty kids whooping it up and a half hour later it rained. Now who was responsible for fogging on a night like this?

I'm all for stopping fogging and each one taking care of his own mosquito problems with insect repellents, bug lights, etc., as decent human beings should do.

Wisconsin Report

Absence of Decorum In Legislature Noted In Chamber Bulletin

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — The Wisconsin State Chamber of Commerce state affairs bulletin has asked a fair question, in a report which characterizes recent state legislative proceedings with considerable restraint.

"Are the people of Wisconsin getting the kind of legislation they want and need when it is passed in an atmosphere of haste and pressure just to get rid of it and go home?"

Wyngaard

The reference was to the confusing scene in the legislative wing of the capitol recently when the lawmakers managed to achieve a recess after a day-long sitting that would have challenged the talents of the most nimble feet and most agile minds assigned to keep informed on its rapid-fire actions.

Actually, the achievement of a recess should not have been difficult. The lawmakers merely closed their desks and went home, leaving hundreds upon hundreds of bills and resolutions on the calendars and in committees to be resolved next October. Why then the confounding haste and unseemly pressure?

WHY?

In the absence of any readily visible explanation, it is perhaps natural that the liberal-minded in the press galleries concluded that the haste had something to do with expense account emoluments, or the lack thereof, however uncharitable that explanation may sound.

More likely these characteristics are attributable to the nature of the institution. The legislature is like a woman dressing to go out to dinner, with respect to maintaining a time schedule. It doesn't matter much when the preparations begin. Tardiness is inevitable.

Under the best of circumstances, the legislature is a difficult thing to manage. Perhaps it proves the wisdom of the English wit who observed that it is not so strange that a cat presents an ungainly appearance when it walks on its hind legs. The wonder is that it walks at all. The observer whose fate it is to watch the legislature at close range as a duty often wonders, indeed, how it manages to produce any work, given the conflicts of personality, and party, and outside pressures, the inherent inefficiencies of rules and procedures inherited from ancient times, a staff of leisurely disposition, and many other disadvantages.

The Chamber of Commerce expresses publicly the wish that the legislature could handle its work in a more "orderly" fashion. Orderliness, in the sense of mechanical efficiency, probably won't ever be attained within the spirit of the rules that obtain — rules that for the most part represent democratic safeguards and purposes. But if the Chamber is alluding to questions of dignity and decorum, as may very well be the case, it has something there, as the saying goes.

DECORUM

The most extraordinary example of waiving of the rules of decorum in this correspondent's considerable experience came during one of the last hectic and crowded days of the state Senate session.

A Madison promoter of elusive identity turned up with an aspiring cafe singer and persuaded a member of the Senate to make a motion to invite her to appear on the rostrum. This interrupted the proceedings of the chamber which is used to boasting about dignity and solemnity for 20 minutes while his childish protege belted out ballads with blaring mechanical accompaniment. This was represented as an encouragement to industry. The promoter was promising to develop a recording business. While the noisy show was going on, lobbyists, visitors and others stared in utter amazement. The Chamber bulletin, among others, noted the melancholy aptness of one of the girl's song titles — "Call Me Irresponsible."

The sexual vanity of the male — which is much greater than that of the female — was well expressed by some anonymous observer I heard, who said "I know a man who hasn't kissed his wife in 10 years — and then he went out and shot a fellow who did."

Every school child, before he or she is allowed to graduate from high school, should be made to write a definition and description of "civilization" — for, although these young people learn "subjects," and often learn them well, they seem disarmingly unaware of what it means to be truly "civilized."

The finest and deepest communication is non-verbal — a look, a shrug, a sniff, a smile, and all the grimaces that we try to repress as we grow older and substitute devious words for our attitudes.

People who think that the churches should refrain from concern and involvement in the basic social issues of our time have simply no concept of what religion is really all about — not a form of consolation, or a passport to heaven, but an active engagement with all the forces that prevent people from realizing their God-given potentials as human beings, here and now.

Nothing I have written in years has caused such a furor — mostly in California, of course — as my recent piece on our native wines: I have been bombarded with telegrams calling me everything from a pipsqueak to a pervert by persons who would scarcely bother to drop me a postcard for anything I wrote on the atomic bomb, the U.N., or the population explosion.

Professional cynics who are fond of quoting Barnum's dictum on the "sucker" should be reminded of his far more trenchant remark that "More persons, on the whole, are duped by believing in nothing than by believing too much."

Most men can't understand why women persist in powdering their noses so frequently, to me, at least, a shiny nose is more attractive than a powdered one.

"Neither a borrower nor a lender be" is just the kind of stupid maxim that a Polonius would give to his son, ignoring the plain fact that borrowing and lending are the life-blood of the social organism.

Progress 'Slow but Evident' In Education of Menominees

Efforts Attempted to Improve
Schooling, but They Still Lag

BY RAY PAGEL
Post-Crescent News Service

KESHENA — Special efforts are being made to improve schooling and education in Menominee County.

Facilities and opportunities are good, and will be better.

Only a fourth of the adult Menominees have gone beyond the eighth grade. A recent survey could find only 50 among a population of some 2,606 who had done any formal study past high school.

The county has two public and two Catholic schools. Students attend junior and senior high in Shawano since Menominee County and eastern Shawano County are one district. Geographically, it is the largest school district in the state.

Arnold Gruber, superintendent of schools, pointed out that the district has six remedial instructors and four full time counselors. Special attention is directed toward the Indians.

Attendance of Menominee students has improved since we were able to provide full enrollment of 87 as freshmen. At one time some students had to walk three miles to catch the bus," Gruber remarked.

Falls Behind

Too often a Menominee youngster is off to a poor start in school, the superintendent said. He falls farther and farther behind, and is at serious disadvantage when he gets into high school.

Gruber was well pleased with results of a supervised study program conducted on a brief trial basis at Keshena last year. Dr. Paul Yambert and student volunteers from Central State University-Stevens Point, held homework sessions at the Keshena school for a good-sized group who came on their own.

It is anticipated that the homework project will be expanded this year, with sessions at both Keshena and Neopit. It will operate as a community action project under the Economic Opportunity Act.

"Progress is slow but evident," declared George L. Koons, district grade supervisor.

Many Menominees are lacking in background experience, but there are parents who are vitally interested. The students are polite and well behaved, but they don't talk as much as we would like.

Koons said Melvin Zahn will become full-time principal for the Neopit and Keshena public schools this year. He has been a teaching principal at Neopit for several years. All teachers are whites, and apparently no Menominees are available.

Liaison Officer
Tony Waupochick described as a "big help" by Supr. Gruber, serves in a key role as liaison officer for the district. Headquartered at Keshena, he checks on attendance and dropouts.

Waupochick produced his detailed attendance file. It showed 192 pupils at the Keshena and 164 at the Neopit public schools last year. St. Joseph at Keshena had 147, while St. Anthony at Neopit had 170.

Junior high at Shawano enrolled 146 Menominees, and 120 were left at year's end. In senior high, 181 enrolled and 152 completed.

These figures indicated a loss of 55 students, but Waupochick modified the picture considerably. Actually, he said, there were only 18 dropouts, counting a girl who disappeared. Others moved away, went to detention schools and foster homes, or transferred. One student died.

"Illness in the family is the primary reason for non-attendance," Waupochick said, admitting that absentee figures are too high to suit him.

"Kindness Works"
The best thing in encouraging attendance is kindness, said the liaison officer, himself a well-educated Menominee.

"The law is there, but kindness works better," Waupochick's records showed that the class of 1965 at Shawano High School included 45 graduates from an initial enrollment of 87 as freshmen.

Menominees who wish to attend university or college have annual grants of $900 available. They must be in the upper two-thirds of their high school class.

The next article, sixth in the series of 12, will discuss housing and living conditions in Menominee County.

Stephanie Waukau, left, is assistant librarian in the new library in the basement of the Menominee Courthouse in Keshena. One of 11 children, she attends Shawano High School. At right is librarian Mrs. Lynne Skenadore, who has had a year's training for her work at Shawano. (Post-Crescent News Service Photos)

Future of Monarchy At Stake in Greece

ATHENS (AP) — The length- off days of rioting and oning battle between King Constantine and former Premier George Papandreou is shaping up into a struggle over the future of the Greek monarchy.

Never known to be overly friendly with the Greek royalty in his 48 years of politics, Papandreou in 1916 joined the uprising that threw out the present king's grandfather, another King Constantine, Greece came to the side of the Allies in World War I as a result.

The present king, who is 25, may have family history in mind as he seeks ways to steer away from a contest with Papandreou at the polls.

Papandreou's backers, at public rallies pressing for the premier's return to power, have taken up new cries that amount to warnings to the king to watch his step.

New Elections

The alternative that Papandreou, 77, posed to the king — new elections if he is not reinstated as premier — could amount to an unofficial plebiscite. Papandreou is considered certain to increase his Center Union party's majority if elections are held.

The king's problem all along has been to find someone who could put together a cabinet able to muster more support in Parliament than Center Union members loyal to Papandreou.

At the start of the crisis, editor Laurance Gandar de- which reached its 28th day of day, the king appointed George Athanasiadis Novas barely an hour after firing Papandreou.

bloodshed, with one student killed and 300 persons injured.

Constantine's first choice fell last week, failing to win a confidence vote after four stormy sessions of Parliament debate.

Papandreou was in the wings pushing hard for the defeat.

"Exploratory Mandate"

The king's next move was to give Papandreou's chief aide, Stephanos Stephanopoulos, an "exploratory mandate." Stephanopoulos asked the Center Union if it liked the idea, found out at a party caucus that it didn't, and gave the mandate back to the king two days ago.

Constantine was believed ready to try forming a coalition government excluding two elements — Papandreou and members of the Communist-front United Democratic Left party.

Papandreou announced he would go to the people to explain his quarrel with the young monarch.

Policemen Disperse Scores of Rioters

no history of race or other rioting police said.

As the riot increased in violence early today, a television station's 1965 station wagon mobile unit was overturned and burned. Police said rioters attacked fire units at the scene, breaking windshields with rocks and bottles.

Murdock said 40 squad cars with 100 officers were dispatched to the scene with orders to arrest persons "for any violation they see."

Residents of the suburban Watts neighborhood told police that many of the rioters were breaking store and apartment windows and some looting was reported.

Two Pound Rock

Officers at the 77th Precinct Station displayed a two-pound chunk of rock that smashed through a window of a car driven by Deputy City Attorney Roland Ringwall. Several windows were broken in Ringwall's car, but he was not injured.

Murdock said the riot started at 7 p.m. when a California Highway Patrol officer arrested a Negro on suspicion of drunken driving. He said a crowd gathered as the suspect's mother began arguing with officers and then erupted in violence when she was arrested.

Rioting grew in intensity throughout the evening as Negroes — mostly teen-agers — pelted motorists and police with rocks, bottles and bricks.

Police said at least 50 vehicles were damaged, including a bus that had nearly all of its windows broken.

Helmeted police armed with nightsticks made several charges into the crowd and briefly dispersed the rioters, who re-formed behind barricades which were quickly erected.

troop in Malaysia and as a result "Singapore and Malaysia will come together in the end — and the end is not so very far away."

The governments of Singapore and Malaysia sought to establish working links.

Singapore's Finance Minister Lum Kim San pledged to "find ways and means" to facilitate trade between the newly independent island state and Malaysia.

"Far from trying to cut economic ties, we want to bring the two territories closer together," Lum said.

The two governments arranged to let Singapore citizens continue to use Malaysian travel documents for the time being. Malaysia agreed to handle Singapore's consular services abroad until the new country sets up its own offices.

Fresh Assurance

Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew gave fresh assurances that the Malay minority on his predominantly Chinese island would continue to receive equal treatment and that Malay would remain the national language. There are 250,000 Malays in Singapore and about 1.2 million Chinese.

Lee had repeatedly charged the Malay-dominated government of Malaysian Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman was blocking non-Malays from political equality in the federation. This was the issue over which Singapore and the federation split Monday.

In a statement today, Rahman charged Lee with "acrimony" and "consistent attacks" that would have led to racial strife and bloodshed. He said he regarded the separation of Singapore as the only alternative to "repressive action" against Lee.

Lee charged earlier that Rahman had forced the separation on him and that Malay extremists were responsible.

Lee said Wednesday Britain should retain her military bases in Singapore to help defend both the island and Malaysia against Indonesia.

Dirksen Plans New Amendment On Redistricting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, vowing "the fight has just begun," has introduced a new version of his defeated constitutional amendment on reapportionment of state legislatures.

Like the proposal which fell seven votes short of a two-thirds majority last week, the new amendment by the Illinois senator would reject the Supreme Court ruling that both houses of state legislatures be apportioned according to population only.

Under the proposal, one house could have seats allocated "on the basis of population geography and political subdivisions (such as counties) in order to insure effective representation in the state's legislature of the various groups and interests making up the electorate."

Changes over the earlier proposal include a provision requiring reapportionment of legislatures every 10 years on the basis of a census, and inclusion of the phrase "to insure effective representation."

mous caller "It serves you right," said another, and, "He didn't belong in Viet Nam in the first place."

But wrote Lt. Robinson to the widow:

Mutual Trust

"I find it rather strange to say I love another man — but I did love Capt. O'Sullivan. I don't suppose you can understand the mutual trust that goes to make an advisory team. A trust that only comes when in your heart you know that the other team members will give their life for you. We had that."

Robinson had been serving under O'Sullivan. The lieutenant was missing after the Vietnamese unit he was advising was wiped out by the Viet Cong.

O'Sullivan's Rangers were ambushed while trying to find Robinson's party.

Some time later, Robinson and two sergeants walked out of the jungle alive. Their radio had been damaged in the fighting.

Death of Student At Beloit Raises Road Toll to 566

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A woman student at Beloit College was killed Wednesday night when a car left the road and struck a tree. Her death raised Wisconsin's 1965 highway toll to 566 compared with 649 on this date a year ago.

Kathryn E. Schmidtko, 20, of Columbia, Mo., a junior at Beloit College, was pronounced dead on arrival at a Beloit hospital Wednesday night after the car in which she was riding missed a curve, traveled through a pasture and struck a tree. She died of a skull fracture. The accident occurred about 8:30 p.m. on Highway 81 15 miles west of Beloit.

Two other Beloit students were injured in the crash, but both were reported in satisfactory condition. They were the driver, Carol L. Kalata, 20, of Riverdale, Ill., and Lauri Ann Tennant, 20, of New Canaan, Conn.

Hoover Memory To be Honored In White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The five living Republicans who have run for president, from Alf Landon to Barry Goldwater, were invited to the White House today to honor the memory of Herbert Hoover and watch Henry Cabot Lodge take the oath as ambassador to South Viet Nam.

President Johnson, who extended the invitations, made no effort to link the two ceremonies.

The five GOP standard bearers — Landon, Thomas E. Dewey, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Richard M. Nixon and Goldwater — were asked to watch Johnson sign legislation creating the Herbert Hoover national historical site at West Branch, Iowa, where the former GOP chief executive was born in 1874 and, just last October, was buried.

The 200-acre site embraces the two-room dwelling where Hoover was born, the plot where he was buried and the library containing his presidential papers.

quarters in the central highlands, as the relief column neared its goal, 30 miles from Pleiku.

A patrol of U.S. paratroopers made a brief contact with guerrillas today at the Montagnard tribal village of Plei Ya ho. Shots were exchanged, but when the paratroopers charged in they found only frightened villagers.

Guarding Airport

The 1st Division infantrymen guarded Pleiku's airport.

Speaking of the downing of the Skyhawk, the spokesman said the three other planes of the flight returned safely and reported it was hit by a missile from the ground.

He added that no enemy aircraft were sighted in the area and no other groundfire was reported except that which hit the plane. The weather was reported clear.

No parachute was seen, the spokesman said, and the missing pilot was presumed killed. It was the second reported downing of an American plane over North Viet Nam by an anti-aircraft missile. A U.S. Air Force F4C Phantom jet was shot down about 40 miles west of Hanoi on July 25, and the Pentagon attributed this to a surface to air missile.

Missile Sites Destroyed

Two days later the Pentagon announced that Air Force jets had bombed the missile site from which the Phantom had been downed as well as another site. It said one site was destroyed, the other damaged and three of the attacking planes were shot down by conventional ground fire.

U.S. reconnaissance planes have located five other missile sites encircling Hanoi, but military spokesmen have raised the possibility that North Viet Nam also has mobile launching units.

The missile launchers are assumed to have been installed by Soviet technicians and may be manned by Soviet personnel.

In the ground war, U.S. and Vietnamese forces in the central highlands mobilized for big operations against the Viet Cong around the embattled special forces camp at Duc Co.

There was no indication whether the Viet Cong would stay and fight or follow their usual tactic of melting away in the face of a formidable enemy.

U.S. troops of the 173rd Airborne Brigade and the 2nd Brigade of the 1st Infantry Division were flown to Pleiku Tuesday and Wednesday to back up a Vietnamese relief column which reached Duc Co Wednesday night. The camp 30 miles southwest of Pleiku had been under siege since June 3.

The chief mission of the Americans was to be a reserve force. But U.S. authorities made plain they would be ordered in to action if the Viet Cong launched a major counterattack.

A military spokesman said there had been no reports of further contact with the communists since around noon, when U.S. paratroopers drew small arms and machine-gun fire from a village 15 miles east of Duc Co. There were no casualties, he said, and a patrol entered the village and found it deserted.

At about the same time, U.S. informants said, the Viet Cong made a new mortar attack on the Duc Co camp. Some 30 rounds of 60mm fire landed about 300 yards short of the camp, they reported.

8-Day Space Voyage Begins Next Thursday

Divitt and Edward H. White II, is just one minute short of four days.

Cooper, who made a 34-hour flight in the Mercury program and who seeks to be the first man to orbit twice, and Conrad will carry their rendezvous satellite with them, packing it in an equipment section at the base of the spacecraft. The satellite is called REP for Radar Evaluation Pod.

During orbit No. 2, 2 hours and 7 minutes after launching, Cooper will press a switch and explosive devices will kick the 76-pound REP into a separate orbit alongside Gemini 5.

Then command pilot Cooper will switch the Gemini 5 orbit so the craft gradually falls behind the satellite to a distance of about 52 miles. Then, using a radar system, an on-board computer and jet thrusters, Cooper will begin chasing the REP later this year.

across the skies. If there are no hitches, he should catch it during orbit No. 4 moving to within 20 feet of it.

Gemini 5 will circle the REP for nearly an hour so that Conrad can photograph it from various angles.

The radar system, elements of which are in both the spacecraft and the REP, is identical to that which Chirra and Stafford will use for the Gemini 6 docking maneuver.

The radar system, elements of which are in both the spacecraft and the REP, is identical to that which Chirra and Stafford will use for the Gemini 6 docking maneuver.

After completing the rendezvous, Cooper and Conrad will settle down to the long haul in space — on a flight which equals the roundtrip time planned for the first team of moon-bound United States astronauts.

The four-day flight of McDivitt and White gave medical experts confidence that man can survive prolonged exposure to space weightlessness. But they say the only way to be certain is to put men in orbit for longer and longer periods and watch them closely. A 14-day Gemini mission is scheduled to begin chasing the REP later this year.
